Praier And Complaynte Of The Plowman Into Christe:

Literature and Complaint in England 1272-1553 Wendy Scase, 2007-03-29 Literature and Complaint in England 1272 1553 gives an entirely new and original perspective on the relations between early judicial process and the development of literature in England Wendy Scase argues that texts ranging from political libels and pamphlets to laments of the unrequited lover constitute a literature shaped by the new and crucial role of complaint in the law courts She describes how complaint took on central importance in the development of institutions such as Parliament and the common law in later medieval England and argues that these developments shaped a literature of complaint within and beyond the judicial process She traces the story of the literature of complaint from the earliest written bills and their links with early complaint poems in English French and Latin through writings associated with political crises of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries to the libels and petitionary pamphlets of Reformation England A final chapter which includes analyses of works by Chaucer Hoccleve and related writers proposes far reaching revisions to current histories of the arts of composition in medieval England Throughout close attention is paid to the forms and language of complaint writing and to the emergence of an infrastructure for the production of plaint texts and many images of plaints and petitions are included The texts discussed include works by well known authors as well as little known libels and pamphlets from across the period Piers Plowman, a Reference Guide Vincent DiMarco, 1982 Langland's Early Modern Identities S. Kelen, 2007-11-26 This book uses the methodologies of cultural studies and the history of the book to show how editors and readers of the Sixteenth through the early Nineteenth century successively remade Piers Plowman and its author according to their own ideologies of the Middle Ages Nowhere in the Middle Ages Karma Lochrie, 2016-05-26 In Nowhere in the Middle Ages Lochrie reveals how utopian thinking was in fact somewhere in the Middle Ages In the process she transforms conventional readings of More's Utopia and challenges the very practice of literary history today A Short History of Culture, from Prehistory to the Renaissance Jack Lindsay, 1962 General work with brief account of Aborigines p 32 50 The Vision of William Concerning Piers the Plowman William Langland, 1874 The Charters of Christ and Piers Plowman Jill Averil Keen, 1999 The Charters of Christ seek to prove human salvation by closely imitating the form and language of feudal grants of land Their use of Latin Middle English and pictorial elements makes them accessible to a variety of audiences In Piers Plowman on the other hand charters may appear to grant pardon or salvation but in the end they fail to provide real assurance The more closely a document follows the letter of the law the further it is from God's spirit John Bunyan, Maker of Myths Jack Lindsay, 1969 This book is a biography of Bunyan But there would be no excuse for re-telling the story of Bunyan's life unless one were considering it from a new angle with a new focus The new focus is here provided by the attempt to relate Bunyan's work in particular and the protestant movement in general to the social forces from which they sprang At the same time I have tried to analyze the myth-making faculty in Bunyan and to show how his allegories take their place in the world of
