Silk Screen Printing:

Silk-Screen Printing for Artists and Craftsmen Mathilda V. and James A. Schwalbach, 2012-07-26 Screen printing is simple enough for a child or beginner but it is also a favorite printing process of experienced artists and craftspeople. It allows for a wide range of creative possibilities. It is less inhibiting than other printing processes. And contrary to most other methods of printing it does not require the user to make the mental translations of a reversed image. The extreme versatility of the medium has opened completely new possibilities for design and expression in both serigraphy art prints and textile designs. The Schwalbachs book clearly explains how to employ silk screen printing in both of these areas producing a serigraph and making a fabric print. It also sets down all of the steps involved in constructing a printing board and frame, keying the screen, preparing inks or dyes and printing the color runs plus a list of various problems that might turn up and their solutions. Other facets discussed include the best ways of cleaning up, handling the completed print and working with different resists, paper, blockout, washout, photo emulsion. There is even a special print project for the beginner using a cardboard frame and school tempera paint. Nearly 200 diagrams and photographs including 19 in full color make a clear text even clearer and offer examples of completed prints. The Schwalbachs taught silk screen printing for many years at the University of Wisconsin. They know how to communicate the essence of this craft in the best manner possible. With their book as a guide, anyone can quickly master the techniques of silk screening printing. Silk-screen Printing for Artists & Craftsmen Mathilda V. chronicles the rapid advancements in the ancient art of stenciling that took place during the late 1800s and how it turned into screen printing as we know it today. With help from the families of the pioneers, industry supporters and over 15 years of research, author Guido Lengwiler has rescued an almost lost history that covers the period up to and including WWII. It tells the interconnected stories of how a relatively small group of people, many of them artists, signwriters and entrepreneurs working in the dawn of the advertising age in the USA, helped create entire industries that continue to exist globally today, all using screen printing in the production of an unbelievably wide range of products. It includes beautiful full color illustrations from the Selectasine Booklet provided to original patent licensees and the main vehicle that spread the process around the world. Hundreds of never before seen product photos, machine designs and some of the first art prints done in the 1920s in California are included, plus special chapters on fine art printmaking along with the ceramic and textile industries. Screen printing was a hybrid process that provided both graphic and manufacturing advantages over other methods and was perfect for the times. Industry, especially in the USA, was transitioning from hand craft into mass production, creating a need to decorate products or advertise them with signage. Most times a closely guarded industrial secret, screen printing bridged gaps between hand production and the more expensive automated printing of the time, which included lithography and letterpress. It introduced cheap short run color capabilities and virtually created the whole Point of Purchase (POP) and Specialty Advertising industries along with the billboard and t-shirt printing sectors. An ability to print directly on a wide variety of materials led to use decorating metal, ceramics, textiles and plastics, spurring record growth, better designs and lowered costs in any industry that adopted it, from fashion to fine china. Experiments prior to WWII led to printed circuits, which in turn revolutionized the electronics industries. All these and more are legacies of the pioneers of screen printing featured in the book. The history of the process is really the history of so many things we take for granted in today's and tomorrow's society.
