the agentic voices and activist practices that are growing across all spheres of young people's lives as well as the challenges to active citizenship that children growing up in unjust sociopolitical contexts face. The volume is interdisciplinary and draws on the sociology of childhood, children's literature studies, youth culture studies, media technology and cultural studies and Anthropocene, ecofeminist and disability studies. Agency occurs in and around literature and storytelling and this collection establishes how it is always influenced by identity as well as geopolitics, how it is both subjective and collective, how it is cultural and embodied and how, like citizenship, it is not a static status but rather an ongoing negotiation. In this collection, contributors invite readers to consider agency as a system of relations between children themselves, between children and adults, children and institutions, and children and nation states as well as between children and the nonhuman. This book reviews the interconnectedness between these relationships and attempts to untangle some of the complications that emerge.

The BookTube/BookTok Phenomenon

Grace E. James, 2022 This thesis explores the online communities on YouTube and TikTok dedicated to books known as BookTube and BookTok which have given literature a sustained relevance in the age of the Internet and caused skyrocketing success for many books and authors The first research question of this study seeks to investigate the motivations behind the young adult community who read books for pleasure and the second posits whether motivations for reading among this audience are hedonistic or eudaimonic in nature Finally the third research question explores how YouTube and TikTok have shaped the cultural discourse on reading books in the Digital Age The theoretical basis for this study is grounded in uses and gratifications theory mood management theory and eudaimonic effects I collected a total of 611 videos and comments from YouTube and TikTok and conducted a textual analysis and critical discourse analysis grouping videos and comments into themes to understand the content of both platforms Results showed that there were several primary motivations for young adult readers including achievement escapism and social interaction There was a consistent measure of hedonistic motivations for reading such as the desire for aesthetic beauty and comforting stories as well as eudaimonic motivations including catharsis and connection with others Additionally YouTube was shown to have higher numbers of subscribers to individual YouTube channels while TikTok had higher general audience numbers for its videos These results supported the premise of uses and gratifications theory while showing evidence of both hedonistic and eudaimonic motivations Furthermore while there was overlap in communication styles and content themes for YouTube and TikTok each community had unique features that allowed users to discuss and interact with stories in different ways
