Neurodivergent Education and Lifelong Learning Keates, Nathan, Waldock, Krysia Emily, 2025-08-08 Neurodivergent education and lifelong learning represent a transformative approach to understanding and supporting individual thinking learning and engagement As neurodiversity awareness increases traditional educational models fail to meet the needs of all learners Embracing neurodivergent perspectives calls for inclusive flexible and personalized educational strategies that extend beyond childhood into adulthood Lifelong learning becomes a tool for personal and professional development and a critical path for neurodivergent individuals to thrive contribute to society and pursue personal fulfillment Neurodivergent Education and Lifelong Learning explores the application of inclusive education practices for accessible learning It examines the lived experiences of neurodivergent individuals to foster a humanized approach to intersectionality and advocacy in educational contexts This book covers topics such as mental health childhood development and higher education and is a useful resource for educators sociologists academicians researchers and scientists

Lifelong Motivation and Foreign Language Learning Bérénice Darnault, 2025-02-05 This book traces the motivational dynamics embedded within lifelong foreign language learning trajectories examining the factors which generate and sustain motivation throughout a learner s life Embracing a complexity approach it views motivation as a long term individual process that evolves along a narrative continuum developing over the course of life personal experiences choices and events This narrative inquiry delves into the captivating and unique experiences of three exceptionally motivated older adult learners who have embarked on a lifelong foreign language journey and maintained their momentum after 60 It will be relevant to researchers interested in third age language acquisition L2 motivation and the impact of additional language learning on wellbeing It also offers pedagogical guidance to optimise language education quality through better appreciation and anticipation of the autonomous third age learning experience

Women in the History of Language Learning and Teaching Sabine Doff, Giovanni Iamartino, Rachel Mairs, 2025-10-01 This volume addresses the historical neglect of women s contributions to language learning and teaching While the historiography of language education has often focused on male dominated frameworks overlooking the pivotal roles women have played the case studies in this book highlight female pioneers in language education across various cultural and linguistic traditions from the Middle Ages to the twentieth century Covering a wide range of languages including Greek Arabic French and English and exploring the gendered dimensions of language education where social class and gender influence both the languages taught and the methods employed the book reveals women s agency in shaping language education and the systematic undervaluing of their contributions In doing so it calls for a broader more inclusive historiography that recognises women s significant impact on the field often in non institutional and domestic contexts and a reconsideration of the history of language education to acknowledge the contributions of women globally

Conference proceedings. ICT for language learning Pixel,2013 Learning a non-native language in a naturalistic environment: Insights from behavioural and neuroimaging research Christos Pliatsikas,Vicky Chondrogianni,2015-09-02 It is largely accepted in the relevant literature that successful learning of one or more non native languages is affected by a number of factors that are independent of the target language s per se these factors include the age of acquisition AoA of the target language s the type and amount of formal instruction the learners have received as well as the amount of language use that the learners demonstrate Recent experimental evidence suggests that one crucial factor for efficient native like performance in the non native language is the amount of naturalistic exposure or immersion that the learners receive to that language This can be broadly defined as the degree to which language learners use their non native language outside the classroom and for their day to day activities and usually presupposes that the learners live in an environment where their non native language is exclusively or mostly used Existing literature has suggested that linguistic immersion can be beneficial for lexical and semantic acquisition in a non native language as well as for non native morphological and syntactic processing More recent evidence has also suggested that naturalistic learning of a non native language can also have an impact on the patterns of brain activity underlying language processing as well as on the structure of brain regions that are involved expressed as changes in the grey matter structure This Research Topic brings together studies on the effects of learning and speaking a non native language in a naturalistic environment These include more efficient or native like processing in behavioural tasks tapping on language lexicon morphology syntax as well as changes in the brain structure and function as revealed by neuroimaging studies
