Regions Spatial Strategies And Sustainable Development:

Regions, Spatial Strategies, and Sustainable Development Graham Haughton, Dave Counsell, 2004-01-01 Regions, Spatial Strategies and Sustainable Development David Counsell, Graham Haughton, 2004-07-31 This book focuses on recent regional policy and planning debates in all the English regions Sustainable City Regions: Tetsuo Kidokoro, Noboru Harata, L.P. Subanu, J. Jessen, A. Motte, E.P. Seltzer, 2008-04-17 How should regional cities develop regional development strategies for their sustainable future How can such strategies work effectively Regional cities are now at a crossroads will they decline or be regenerated under the impacts of globalization Their sustainable regeneration as creative regional centers will play a decisive role in their sustainable development as a whole but only with viable regional spatial strategies that strengthen the network of cities and their hinterlands The concern here lies in urban regeneration and strategic spatial planning at the city region level This book records observations of 12 dynamically changing regional cities in Asia Europe and the United States The form of the city region urban regeneration and strategic spatial planning as well as the local and regional governance of each city are examined Through this empirical and comparative analysis essential lessons are drawn which will add a new perspective to discussions on the sustainable future of regional cities in an age of globalization

Regional Spatial Strategy for the East Midlands (RSS8). Great Britain. Government Office for the East Midlands, Great Britain. Office of the Deputy Prime Minister, 2005 This Regional Spatial Strategy replaces the previous Regional Planning Guidance RPG8 and provides a broad development strategy for the East Midlands up to 2021 The sections of the document are core strategy which outlines the 10 core objectives spatial strategy which continues the sequential approach to development outlined in RPG8 topic based priorities which looks at five main topics such as housing regional priorities for monitoring and review Milton Keynes and South Midlands sub regional strategy which is published as a separate document ISBN 0117539422 Sustainable Development for Central and Eastern Europe Ulrich Graute, 2012-12-06 Central and Eastern European Countries are undergoing a difficult transition process with consequences for spatial development Europe needs a more balanced polycentric system of cities a new urban rural relationship parity of access to infrastructure and knowledge as well as prudent management and development of the natural and cultural heritage Dealing with these complex challenges and the need for sustainable development politicians requires qualified advice from experts To this end the German Ministry for Regional Planning Construction and Urban Development initiated the Network of Spatial Research Institutes in Central and Eastern Europe CEE Net in 1992 Exchange of knowledge and an open dialogue at all levels are pre conditions for the cooperative development of visions and strategies serving spatial development in Europe The annual conferences of the network have been a first steps towards closer cooperation The high interest shown in these conferences by academics and government representatives and the fact that several research projects have already crystallised out of the debates they engendered indicate that the network is meeting a need for exchange and cooperation Decisions on spatial development do not stop at national borders and the discussion on spatial development in any European region has therefore to take the European context into consideration. A special advantage of this publication is that as well as focusing on spatial development and research in CEE regions it also discusses Central and Eastern Europe in a European context. Regional Spatial Strategies Great Britain. Office of the Deputy Prime Minister, 2004. The provisions of the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act strengthen the role and importance of regional planning replacing regional planning guidance RPG with statutory regional spatial strategies RSS. This document sets out details of procedural policy aspects of the RSSs which apply throughout England with the exception of London where the Mayor has responsibility for preparing a spatial development strategy. It complements other statements of national planning policy and should be read in conjunction with them. Also known as PPS11 this document replaces Planning policy guidance note 11 PPG11 2000 edition ISBN 0117535575. The New Spatial Planning Graham Haughton, Philip Allmendinger, David Counsell, Geoff Vigar, 2009-12-04. Spatial planning strongly advocated by government and the profession is intended to be more holistic more strategic more inclusive more integrative and more attuned to sustainable development than previous approaches. In what the authors refer to as the New Spatial Planning there is a fairly rapidly evolving maturity and sophistication in how strategies are developed and produced. Crucially the authors argue that the reworked boundaries of spatial planning means that to understand it we need to look as much outside the formal system of practices of planning as within it. Using a rich empirical resource base this book takes a critical look at recent practices to see whether the new spatial planning is having the kinds of impacts its advocates would wish. Contributing to theoretical debates in planning state restructuring and governance it also outlines and critiques the contemporary practice of spatial planning. This book will have a place on the shelves of researchers and students interested in urban regional studies politics and planning studies. Territory, Identity and Spatial Planning Mark Tewdwr-Jones, Philip Allmendinger, 2006-09-27. This book provides a multi disciplinary study of territory identity and space in a devolved UK through the lens of spatial planning. It draws together leading internationally renowned researchers from a variety of disciplines to address the implications of devolution upon spatial planning and the rescaling of UK politics. Each contributor offers a different perspective on the core issues in planning today in the context of New Labour's regional project particularly the government's concern with business competitiveness and key themes are illustrated with important case studies throughout. Abolition of regional spatial strategies Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Communities and Local Government Committee, 2011-03-17. Regional Spatial Strategies RSSs bridged the gap between those planning issues determined by local policy or concern and those subject to policy goals defined at a national level such as those for housing or renewable energy. The committee did not pass judgment on the merits of regional spatial strategies but is concerned about the hiatus created by their intended abolition. This is giving rise to an inertia that is likely to hinder development making it much harder to deliver necessary but controversial or emotive larger than local facilities and to ensure that our national need for new housing is met There also needs to be a strengthened local authority duty to co operate and a better understanding of where Local Enterprise Partnerships will fit into these new planning arrangements The Government s recognition that we need to build more houses and its commitment to deliver 150 000 affordable homes over the next four years although this is not an exceptional number by historic standards is welcomed However the likelihood of achieving this increase through the New Homes Bonus is questioned There is no evidence this mechanism will increase housing supply by 8 13% in the way that ministers predict Indeed it became clear during this inquiry that estimates for new house building contained in local authorities plans have already fallen by 200 000 following the decision to abolish RSSs The committee concludes that this Government may face a stark choice between whether to build fewer homes than its predecessors or abandon its commitment to promote localism in decisions of this kind The committee therefore calls for the New Homes Bonus to be linked explicitly to the delivery of homes provided for in local plans following robust assessments of housing need

Regional Spatial Strategy for Yorkshire and the Humber to 2016 Great Britain. Government Office for Yorkshire and the Humber, Yorkshire and Humber Assembly, 2004 This regional spatial strategy RSS for Yorkshire and the Humber is based upon the selective review of RPG 12 2001 ISBN 0117536180 The review addressed rural regeneration coastal communities culture and tourism climate change renewable energy flood risk waste management and transport The RSS has statutory status under the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2003 and must be taken into account by local authorities when preparing their development plans and local transport plans Specific chapters cover regional context vision objectives and strategy regional spatial strategy the economy housing transport social infrastructure built and natural environment resource management monitoring implementation and review Strategic Planning for Regional Development in the UK ,

Regional Development and Spatial Planning in an Enlarged European Union Neil Adams, 2016-04-01 The expansion of the European Union in 2004 has had significant consequences for both existing and new members of the Union New member states are assimilating into a new institutional and policy framework while the changing geography of Europe provides a different context for policy development in pre 2004 member states One of the more important fields in which these changes are impacting is regional development The admission of the new countries changes patterns of economic and social disparities across the territory of the European Union which in turn demands that existing approaches to regional development are reconsidered An approach which has proved to be one of the most innovative is spatial planning This book brings together a team of academics and policy makers from across the new Europe involved in regional development and spatial planning Providing insights into different approaches it offers a valuable opportunity to compare experiences across European borders Regional Planning John Glasson, Tim Marshall, 2007 This comprehensive introduction to the concepts and theory of regional planning in the UK Drawing on examples from throughout the UK is the essential up to date text for students interested in all aspects of this increasingly influential subject Spatial Planning and the New Localism Graham

Haughton, Philip Allmendinger, 2018-05-11 This book looks at the transition from New Labour's Spatial Planning approach to the Coalition Government's preferred Localism approach. Localism we are told will liberate local planners from the heavy hand of central government and allow planning to flourish at the local level. Alternatively, austerity cuts nationally mean planning faces cuts. In just two years the machinery of regional planning has been dismantled and local authorities are being asked to do more with less. Innovation is also evident, however, notably with the introduction of neighbourhood planning and Local Enterprise Partnerships. This collection contains chapters looking at the planning system, overall sustainability and planning new approaches to infrastructure planning and the critical interface between urban policy, local economic development and planning. This book was published as a special issue of Planning Practice and Research. It also contains a brand new afterword written by the editors. Localism, austerity and planning

The New Spatial Planning, 2010 Spatial planning strongly advocated by government and the profession is intended to be more holistic, more strategic, more inclusive, more integrative and more attuned to sustainable development than previous approaches. In what the authors refer to as the New Spatial Planning, there is a fairly rapidly evolving maturity and sophistication in how strategies are developed and produced. Crucially, the authors argue that the reworked boundaries of spatial planning means that to understand it we need to look as much outside the formal system of practices of planning as within it. Using a rich empirical resource base, this book takes a critical look at recent practices to see whether the new spatial planning is having the kinds of impacts its advocates would wish. Contributing to theoretical debates in planning, state restructuring and governance, it also outlines and critiques the contemporary practice of spatial planning. This book will have a place on the shelves of researchers and students interested in urban, regional studies, politics and planning studies.

Climate Change and Local, Regional and Devolved Government Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Environmental Audit Committee, 2008 This report, entitled Climate change and local, regional and devolved government (HCP 225 session 2007-08, ISBN 9780215522122), sets out 22 conclusions and recommendations, including that Central Government has a duty to co-ordinate how different spheres of government interact and integrate in regard of action on climate change. Overcoming barriers to progress on climate change is essential and the Government must look at incentives and encouragements it can offer to local, regional and devolved government. All local authorities should be obliged to include climate change indicators in their Local Area Agreements and further the investment and development plans for local authorities should consider the need to reduce emissions and adapt to climate change. That local authorities, regional and devolved governments need to be aware of other targets including biodiversity and energy efficiency that the Government needs to consider what part carbon impact assessments will play in local, regional and devolved governments and how they can become a central role in decision and policy making.
