Bold architects are transforming Nice into a world leading city

Nice, in the south of France, is welcoming a slow and steady influx of contemporary, environmentally friendly architecture by local and international studios that is set to boost the city's housing and infrastructure offering.

Gare du Sud Nice by Reichen et Robert architects

Recently Reichen et Robert architects did their part in the area by restoring and repurposing the dilapidated Gare du Sud, overlooking a popular daily street market. They transformed the voluminous Eiffel-designed tram shed into a public market and exhibition space enveloped in glass that engages with the residential buildings to the rear. A new stepped forecourt provides seating for market shoppers. ★
