Pirate Gold Brian Lister, 2017 Fifty years ago after a long delay the government acted to close down the dozen or so pirate radio stations which had sprung up around the British coast Many of the stories about those ships and offshore forts are well known but this book asks intriguing questions about what was really going on behind the scenes Offshore unlicensed radio stations were not a new idea they had existed in different forms elsewhere for decades so why did the phenomenon blossom in the UK when it did It is common to conflate the rise of the UK pirate radio stations with the liberation struggles going on at the same time civil rights protests anti war movements student unrest and increasingly liberal attitudes to sex and sexuality Fifty years on we can appreciate the reality the people behind the early offshore stations were frequently motivated by very different political agendas and often the ships and forts were simply pawns in much bigger power games

Radio Caroline is an English radio station founded in 1964 by Ronan O'Rahilly to circumvent the record companies' control of popular music broadcasting in the United Kingdom and the BBC's radio broadcasting monopoly. Unlicensed by any government for the majority of its early life, it was considered a pirate radio station. Radio Caroline began test broadcasts on Friday 27 March 1964, commencing full-time transmissions at noon on 29 March, Easter Sunday. It broadcast from a former Danish ferry, the Fredericia, re-named MV Caroline, and anchored three miles (5 km) off the coast of Felixstowe, Suffolk, England, just outside British territorial waters. In April 1964, Radio Atlanta began broadcasting from the MV Mi Amigo, a former coaster anchored off Harwich, Essex. Both stations operated independently for several months but underwent a merger of the companies' sales operations. The Caroline moved to an anchorage off Ramsey, Isle of Man, and broadcast as Radio Caroline North.

London's Pirate Pioneers Stephen Hebditch, 2015-05-01 London's Pirate Pioneers tells the story of the capital's pirate radio stations and the people who helped change the British broadcasting system. From the early hobbyist operations of the 1960s to the big commercial enterprises of the 1980s, from suburban bedrooms to open fields to urban tower blocks, from hippies to soul boys to ravers, the book weaves together a year-by-year account of the developments in London's radio with the stories of the key stations. It explores the political, social, musical, and technological changes that were to influence each stage in their evolution. Photos from every era take you behind the scenes to see the DJs and engineers at work, and the book gathers together flyers and promos from many of the leading stations. Stephen Hebditch was editor of TX Radio Today, the most popular pirate radio magazine in the eighties in London, and has continued documenting the pirates at amfm.org.uk.
