beyond Nile Green's Bombay Islam traces the ties between industrialization imperialism and the production of religion to show how Muslim migration fueled demand for a wide range of religious suppliers as Christian missionaries competed with Muslim religious entrepreneurs for a stake in the new market. Enabled by a colonial policy of non intervention in religious affairs and powered by steam travel and vernacular printing Bombay's Islamic productions were exported as far as South Africa and Iran. Connecting histories of religion labour and globalization the book examines the role of ordinary people mill hands and merchants in shaping the demand that drove the market. By drawing on hagiographies travelogues doctrinal works and poems in Persian Urdu and Arabic Bombay Islam unravels a vernacular modernity that saw people from across the Indian Ocean drawn into Bombay's industrial economy of enchantment. Religious Studies Gregory D. Ramsey, 2012-03-01

Often described as the soul of Islam Sufism is one of the most interesting yet least known facet of this global religion. Sufism is the softer more inclusive and mystical form of Islam. Although militant Islamists dominate the headlines the Sufi ideal has captured the imagination of many. Nowhere in the world is the handprint of Sufism more observable than South Asia which has the largest Muslim population of the world but also the greatest concentration of Sufis. This book examines active Sufi communities in Pakistan India and Bangladesh that shed light on the devotion and deviation and destiny of Sufism in South Asia. Drawn from extensive work by indigenous and international scholars this ethnographical study explores the impact of Iran on the development of Sufi thought and practice further east and also discusses Sufism in diaspora in such contexts as the UK and North America and Iran's influence on South Asian Sufism. The Book Review, 1997 Women Mystics and Sufi Shrines in India Kelly Pemberton, 2010

Women Mystics and Sufi Shrines in India combines historical data with years of ethnographic fieldwork to investigate women's participation in the culture of Sufi shrines in India and the manner in which this participation both complicates and sustains traditional conceptions of Islamic womanhood. Kelly Pemberton's fieldwork offers an assessment of the contemporary circumstances under which a woman may be recognized as a spiritual authority or guide despite official denial of such status and an examination of the discrepancies between the commonly held belief that women cannot perform in the public setting of shrines and her own observations of women doing precisely that. She demonstrates that the existence of multiple models of master and disciple relationships have opened avenues for women to be recognized as spiritual authorities in their own right. Specifically Pemberton explores the work of performance recitation and ritual mediation carried out by women connected with Sufi orders through kinship and spiritual ties and she maps shifting ideas about women's involvement in public ritual events in a variety of contexts circumstances and genres of performance She also highlights the private petitioning of saints the Prophet and God performed by poor women of low social standing in Bihar Sharif These women are often perceived as being exceptionally close to God yet are compelled to operate outside the public sphere of major shrines
