Place Makers:

Children as Place-Makers Simon Unwin, 2019-03-28 Each of these Analysing Architecture Notebooks is devoted to a particular theme in understanding the rich and varied workings of architecture. They can be thought of as addenda to the foundation volume Analysing Architecture which first appeared in 1997 and has subsequently been enlarged in three further editions. Examining these extra themes as a series of Notebooks rather than as additional chapters in future editions allows greater space for more detailed exploration of a wider variety of examples whilst avoiding the risk of the original book becoming unwieldy. As children we make places spontaneously on the beach, in woodland around our homes. Those places are evidence of a natural language of architecture we all share. Beginning with the child as seed and agent of the places it makes, initial sections of Children as Place makers illustrate the key verbs that drive that natural language of architecture. Later sections look at the core importance of the circle of place: how as children we are drawn to inhabit boxes and the narrative possibilities that arise when place is linked with imagination. The principal messages of this Notebook are that it is by place making we make sense of the space of the world in which we live and that the first step in becoming a professional architect is to re-awaken the innate architect inside each of us. The Placemakers of Hong Kong Roger Nissim, 2025-11-04

The Placemakers of Hong Kong pays homage to what local development companies, charitable organizations as well as the government have been able to achieve in contributing to the enhancement of Hong Kong's evolving urban and rural landscape. Far from being solely profit-driven developers, urban planners have been vital to the community by creating and designing urban spaces for the public, increasing walkability and embracing sustainable design, a process called placemaking. The book also recognizes that just as important are the subsequent placekeeping activities necessary to keep each project site relevant and up to date. Featuring five case studies from the past and one that examines the ambitious and far-reaching plans for the Northern Metropolis, this book tells the story of Hong Kong's miraculous urban development over the past few decades. The Yorkshire Textile Directory and Engineers and Machine Makers' Advertiser, 1903

Bachelor Thesis from the year 2019 in the subject Business economics Review of Business Studies grade 1.3 Technical University of Munich TUM School of Management Chair for Management Accounting language English abstract The bachelor thesis combines theories, literature, lab and field experiments, event studies from the industry and its very own empirical research to argue from both a strategic as well as a financial perspective that an inimitable organizational culture of intrinsic motivation and meaningful work may constitute a source of competitive advantage within the War for Talent. The thesis strives at highlighting the importance for firms to adapt to the newly emerged competitive environment that the ongoing War for Talent has created by considering their people as their most valuable asset for the success of the organization as already hinted at throughout The Art of War by Sun Tzu in 500 BC hence the reference in the title of this thesis After a brief review of the circumstances that led to the emergence of the War for Talent and first implications for the industry it is argued from a strategic perspective why motivated talent depicts the key resource for competitive advantage and why conventional extrinsic incentive measures aimed at maximizing productivity are no longer effective Afterwards a proposition will be made of how capitalizing on intrinsic motivation human s inner drive to accomplish inherently interesting and challenging tasks fostered through a framework of meaningful work might be the decisive driver to get ahead in the quest for talent A second string of argumentation draws a connection between meaningful work and superior financial performance This proposition is then tested by an empirical analysis comparing the financial performance of publicly traded companies featured on the 2017 Fortune 100 Best Companies to Work For list against a control portfolio and the broad market confirming significant differences for cumulative stock returns
