Archaeology and Community Service Learning Michael S. Nassaney, Mary Ann Levine, 2009 Highlights the important role of archaeology and community service learning in transforming higher education into a progressive force that challenges contemporary social inequality through empowering students to work collaboratively in uncovering the silenced histories of oppressed and exploited groups

Howard Rosing DePaul University Nassaney and Levine examine how CSL can contribute to what they see as the necessary reform of archaeological pedagogy in the United States

Maureen Malloy Society for American Archaeology

In recent years a number of archaeologists have begun making concerted attempts to reach out and engage the public in their work This collection examines how the field can successfully incorporate community service learning CSL into its pedagogies to broaden and enhance learning opportunities for students promote civic engagement and embrace community partnerships

Editors Michael Nassaney and Mary Ann Levine have been actively integrating the techniques of CSL into their research for years and view it as a natural outgrowth of developments in the field since the 1970s

Although archaeology has long emphasized a practical field based approach in training new scholars CSL moves beyond volunteering and experiential learning

In discussing specific examples from work in historical archaeology the contributors highlight the achievements and challenges faced by archaeologists and their students in the classroom and the field while collaborating with a variety of community partners
