Imagining Women's Conventual Spaces in France, 1600-1800 Barbara R. Woshinsky, 2016-12-05 Blending history and architecture with literary analysis this ground breaking study explores the convent's place in the early modern imagination The author brackets her account between two pivotal events the Council of Trent imposing strict enclosure on cloistered nuns and the French Revolution expelling them from their cloisters two centuries later In the intervening time women within convent walls were both captives and refugees from an outside world dominated by patriarchal power and discourses Yet despite locks and bars the cloister remained porous to privileged visitors Others could catch a glimpse of veiled nuns through the elaborate grills separating cloistered space from the church provoking imaginative accounts of convent life Not surprisingly the figure of the confined religious woman represents an intensified object of desire in male authored narrative The convent also spurred feminutopian discourses composed by women convents become safe houses for those fleeing bad marriages or trying to construct an ideal pastoral life as a counter model to the male dominated court or household Recent criticism has identified certain privileged spaces that early modern women made their own the ruelle the salon the hearth of fairy tale telling Woshinsky s book definitively adds the convent to this list

Occupying Space in American Literature and Culture inscribes itself within the spatial turn that permeates the ways we look at literary and cultural productions The volume seeks to clarify the connections between race space class and identity as it concentrates on different occupations and disoccupations enclosures and boundaries Space is scaled up and down from the body the ground zero of spatiality to the texturology of Manhattan from the striated place of the office in Melville s Bartleby the Scrivener on Wall Street to the striated spaces of internment camps and reservations from the lowest of the low the human clutter that lined the streets of Albany NY during the Depression to the new Towers of Babel that punctuate the contemporary architecture of transparencies As it strings together these spatial narratives the volume reveals how beyond the boundaries that characterize each space every location has loose ends that are impossible to contain
