Rawlings Zora Neale Hurston and William Faulkner Specifically he argues that these writers created new versions of an old literary mode the pastoral in response to the destabilizing effects of the Great Depression the rise of Southern modernism and the mechanization of agricultural jobs Mass deforestation soil erosion urban development and depleted soil fertility are issues that come to the fore in the works of these writers In response each author depicts a network model of nature where humans are part of the natural world rather than separate over or above it as in the garden pastorals of the Old South thus significantly revising the pastoral mode proffered by antebellum and Reconstruction era writers Each writer Rieger finds infuses the pastoral mode with continuing relevance creating new versions that fit his or her ideological positions on issues of race class and gender Despite the ways these authors represent nature and humankind s place in it they all illustrate the idea that the natural environment is more than just a passive background against which the substance of life or fiction is played out

Waterfront Regeneration Harry C. Smith, Maria Soledad Garcia Ferrari, 2012 Waterfront Regeneration presents a framework to help understand the complexity of waterfront redevelopment as city building It uses this framework to examine how several cities around the North Sea have been experimenting with different approaches to waterfront regeneration over the last decade The book explores how resources regulations and ideas have influenced the redevelopment of these waterfront areas through the creation of new design and development processes the participation of different stakeholders including planners urban designers and architects politicians developers landowners and community groups and the experimentation with innovative design approaches particularly in relation to public spaces The book also offers some reflection on future trends and priorities in waterfront regeneration and redevelopment around the North Sea and worldwide
