Plague Of Pythons:

A Plague of Pythons Frederik Pohl, 1965 The world is reduced to a grim struggle of existence after a plague of madness that afflicted individuals at random Some two years previously every government in the world was attacked by its own military machinery which then self destructed All civilian air transport was similarly destroyed along with major cities like San Francisco After the initial meltdown people began claiming to be possessed They would commit crimes of violence but afterward they would claim to have had no control over their actions This leads to superstitions about demonic possessions as well as a novel legal defense
