Second Growth Community Economic Development In Rural British Columbia:

Second Growth Sean Markey, John T. Pierce, Kelly Vodden, Mark Roseland, 2007-10-01 Broader political and economic changes are dramatically reshaping rural and small town communities in British Columbia and across Canada Increasingly however much of the responsibility for community based prosperity and survival is falling to communities themselves This book is drawn from a three year participatory research project with four communities in British Columbia two municipalities and two Aboriginal communities The first part of the book examines historical and contemporary forces of restructuring linking the development of rural communities with the legacy of resource development and Aboriginal marginalization across the province The second part of the book presents the theoretical and practical dynamics of the community economic development CED process and outlines a variety of strategies communities can initiate to diversify their local economies Second Growth advances understanding of local development by addressing two important deficiencies in the CED literature First CED is a rapidly expanding field that requires enhanced theoretical direction and historical analysis Second there is a need for systematic case study analyses of CED strategies in rural small town conditions As communities struggle to confront complex forces of change sound theoretical frameworks and tested best practices are important tools in facilitating the prospects for a second growth in rural and small town communities The book will appeal to educators and students of rural and economic geography policy makers and citizens who wish to better understand the transformations taking place across the rural landscape

Transformation of Resource Towns and Peripheries Greg Halseth, 2016-07-01 Most developed economies including single industry and resource dependent rural or small town regions are transforming rapidly as a result of social political and economic change Collectively they face a number of challenges as well as new opportunities This international collaboration describes a critical political economy framework that will be useful for understanding these transitions Transformation of Resource Towns and Peripheries describes the multi faceted process of transition and change in resource dependent rural and small town regions since the end of the Second World War The book incorporates international case studies from Australia Canada Finland and New Zealand with the express purpose of highlighting similarities and differences in patterns and practices in each country Chapters explore three main themes how corporate ties and trade linkages are changing and impacting rural communities and regions how resource industry employment is changing in these small communities and how local community capacity and leadership are working to mitigate challenges and take advantage of new opportunities This book will be of interest to students of regional studies geography and rural and industrial sociology It will also have a strong appeal to policy makers and local regional development practitioners

Scaling Up Sean Markey, Mark Roseland, 2016-02-15 When citizens take collaborative action to meet the needs of their community they are participating in the social economy Co operatives community based social services local non profit organizations and charitable foundations are all examples of social economies that emphasize mutual benefit rather than the accumulation of profit While such groups often participate in market based activities to achieve their goals they also pose an alternative to the capitalist market economy Contributors to Scaling Up investigated innovative social economies in British Columbia and Alberta and discovered that achieving a social good through collective grassroots enterprise resulted in a sustainable way of satisfying human needs that was also by extension environmentally responsible As these case studies illustrate organizations that are capable of harnessing the power of a social economy generally demonstrate a commitment to three outcomes greater social justice financial self sufficiency and environmental sustainability Within the matrix of these three allied principles lie new strategic directions for the politics of sustainability Whether they were examining attainable and affordable housing initiatives co operative approaches to the provision of social services local credit unions farmers markets or community owned power companies the contributors found social economies providing solutions based on reciprocity and an understanding of how parts function within the whole an understanding that is essential to sustainability In these locally defined and controlled democratically operated organizations we see possibilities for a more human economy that is capable of transforming the very social and technical systems that make our current way of life unsustainable

Aboriginal Peoples and Forest Lands in Canada D.B. Tindall,Ronald Trosper,Pamela Perreault,2013-02-11 Aboriginal people in Canada have long struggled to regain control over their traditional forest lands Aboriginal Peoples and Forest Lands in Canada brings together the diverse perspectives of Aboriginals and non Aboriginals to address the political cultural environmental and economic implications of forest use This book discusses the need for professionals working in forestry and conservation to understand the context of Aboriginal participation in resource management It also addresses the importance of researching traditional knowledge and traditional land use and examines the development of co management initiatives and joint ventures between government forestry companies and Aboriginal communities

Investing in Place Sean Markey,Greg Halseth,Don Manson,2012-08-01 The future of northern British Columbia a vast resource rich region of vibrant cultures and diverse communities could be either driven by a narrow economic agenda or guided by innovative place based solutions that seek to build viable communities and resilient local and regional economies Investing in Place is about creating the foundations for renewing northern British Columbia s rural and small town economies Markey Halseth and Manson argue that renewal is not about nostalgic reliance on the policies and economic strategies of the past rather it is about building a pragmatic and innovative vision for development one that acknowledges both the opportunities and the challenges posed by resource development and global and technological change For policy makers and residents alike the path to renewal lies in place based development which consists of people working together at all levels of the community and region to take advantage of local opportunities in a sustainable responsible way

The Economy of Green Cities Richard Simpson,Monika Zimmermann,2012-11-06 This volume bridges the gap between the global promotion of the Green Economy and the manifestation of this new development strategy at the urban level Green cities are an imperative solution not only in meeting global environmental challenges but also in helping to ensure socio economic prosperity at the local level
