Secondary Head Roles Responsibilities And Reflections:

The Headship Game Brian Fidler, Tessa Atton, 2004 Being an effective headteacher requires a combination of leadership skills What does an aspiring head need to know to win the headship game Tessa Atton and Brian Fidler focus on particular pressure points and key issues that can be particularly problematic and suggest ways of dealing with them Comparisons are made between headships and chief executive roles of other organisations and extensive examples are included from current headteachers to illustrate aspects of the job which they find most challenging The authors also examine the career of headship from application to retirement and emphasize the need to learn about leadership before becoming a head Using examples of current headship practice they suggest ways of developing good practice further Some of the issues covered in this practical guide include development of leadership thought achieving headship selecting and supporting headteachers understanding the demands of contemporary headship after headship The Headship Game will be a valuable resource for current and aspiring headteachers deputy heads and those on NPQH courses

Leaders and Leadership in Education Helen M Gunter, 2001-09-18 Leaders and Leadership in Education makes a significant contribution to improvement literature It will challenge school managers taking headship and leadership qualifications or any reader with a serious interest in reconceptualising leadership for learning TES Friday Magazine Leaders and Leadership in Education is a well documented account of how leadership has been studied and therefore presented For academic readers it is valuable as an insightful and critical text Journal of In Service Education Helen Gunter's book makes a significant contribution to the existing literature on leadership in education For anyone who has an interest in current thinking about leadership and in reconceptualizing leadership for learning this book will be of great interest Educational Research Leadership within educational settings is widely regarded as essential for organizational effectiveness and the improvement of learning outcomes Through an extensive review of theory and practice Helen M Gunter explores the contested field of leadership studies She describes and critiques the different contributions made by critical studies education management school effectiveness school improvement Leadership is examined as function as behaviour and as leadership relationship from students as leaders through to headteachers The author provides an up to date review of current thinking about leadership which challenges the reader to engage with and develop alternative ways of thinking about their own leadership This book is essential reading for practitioners on Masters and EdD courses and NPQH LPSH training and for anyone committed to teaching and learning

Singapore School Principals: Leadership Stories Zoe Suan Loy Boon, 2018-04-09 This book is undertaken by the author who has personally walked the journey of a classroom teacher middle leader and school principal in the Singapore education system It is a culmination of two research projects undertaken in two phases the first is derived from the PhD Thesis entitled The Making of School Principals in Singapore and the second is based on interviews with school principals who have retired from the Singapore education system Both research projects provide invaluable input to describe the four career phases of school leadership that is formation accession incumbency and divestiture This research describes how the formative years of a school principal have tremendous impact on who the principal is and how the values and beliefs of an aspiring potential school leader serve to guide him/her in taking on the principalship post This well structured book is both exploratory and descriptive It provides the necessary background for anyone interested in understanding school leadership as a career More specifically it will be of value to educators and stakeholders interested in understanding the nature of school leadership in the Singapore education system

The Secondary Head Peter Mortimore, Jo Mortimore, 1991 In this book secondary headteachers present their thoughts on headship With the Education Reform Act Local Management of Schools and the enormously increased role of school governors to say nothing of the National Curriculum headteachers today face an exceptionally difficult and complex task The heads in this book run schools both large and small urban rural and suburban with and without ethnic minority pupils The heads themselves are of widely differing ages cultures and backgrounds Each presents a fascinating account of their school and its community details of the management of their school the organization of learning the relationships between head staff pupils and parents and most important of all their own unique and personal reflections on headship It is the companion volume to The Primary Head by the same editors
