Service Industries and Asia Pacific Cities Peter W. Daniels, Kong Chong Ho, Thomas A. Hutton, Tom Hutton, 2005-04 During the second half of the twentieth century development in the Asia Pacific region has been dominated by industrialization However at the beginning of the twenty first century services in particular finance information and creative services have become deeply embedded in the processes of urban growth In Asia Pacific the rise of service industries has lead to national modernization programmes and globalization strategies Services are also driving change in the internal form of city regions and are being actively deployed as instruments of metropolitan reconfiguration and land use changes These changes have created problems such as social polarization and the displacement of traditional industries and residential districts Also there are tensions between local and global processes in the development of service industries and between the imperatives of competitive advantage and sustainable development

Service Industries and Asia Pacific Cities brings together a multi disciplinary team of experts to explore and illustrate the theoretical conceptual and practical issues arising from the transformation of Asia Pacific cities by service industries

Industrial Location James W. Harrington, Barney Warf, 2002-09-11 Location is vital to the efficiency and profitability of industrial activity Industrial Location presents a comprehensive introduction to and critical review of this field of growing academic and business interest In business the right choices have to be made to produce profit Industrial location is a fixed investment crucial to the strategy and capital investment of any organization Location also impacts upon non investors directly affecting employment the environment and economic activity in the locale Focusing chiefly on the United States but drawing on an international range of cases the authors explain the economic social and political forces which have shaped contemporary patterns of industrialization and examines the changing nature of production and systems

Producer Services in Cities of the Asia Pacific Economic Region Morshidi Sirat, Abdul Fatah Che Hamat, Nooriah Yusof, 2001 Much attention has been given recently to the role and contribution of producer services in advanced economies In most of these economies producer services account for no less than 50 percent of employment in metropolitan areas Evidently the increase in the share of producer services in all employment has been well documented for Europe and for North America In so far as the Asia Pacific economic region is concerned there is a similar pattern of growth and development although this is only based on employment in finance insurance real estate and business services Producer services represent one of the key new growth sectors but in the context of the Asia Pacific economic region empirical work about how producer services are participating in and shaping the process of development remains to be undertaken In the case of many developing countries in the Asia Pacific economic region grouping producer services are heavily represented in urban and metropolitan areas which are more developed and functionally diverse However the role and contribution of producer services in the highest of the urban hierarchy in the developing countries of the region has not been examined adequately The study reported in this book is also based on various debates concerning the interurban location of producer service activities The overwhelming importance of face to face contact in both the acquisition of inputs and the delivery of the product to clients results in agglomeration economies maximizing and transaction cost minimizing in corporate activity complexes traditionally located in the CBD
