Over the past few decades scholars and practitioners working on gender and development issues have advocated for more in depth analyses that explore and foster change in the social institutions that create and perpetuate gender inequalities. Gender integration approaches in a research and development context are thus not something new. However, mainstream agricultural research and development programs often apply a rather simple understanding of gender to the design of such approaches, resulting in poor implementation. The CGIAR Research Program on Aquatic Agricultural Systems uses gender transformative approaches to help achieve the goal of enhancing development outcomes of resource poor women and men and their families in a sustainable manner. This paper details the approaches the program utilizes and is beginning to implement in its five learning hubs which are located in areas where dependence on aquatic agricultural systems is high. The paper provides guidance on how other programs could prepare themselves to design and operationalize gender transformative approaches and highlights some early learning on their application. Country Boys: Masculinity and Rural Life, Cultural Dynamics of Women's Lives Ana Clara S. Bastos, Jaan Valsiner, Kristiina Uriko, 2012-12-01

This book explores the diverse landscapes wherein women struggle for their personal and social identities and lives between biology and culture, destiny and choice, shared and individual worlds, tradition and modernity. Their peripheral lives have central meaning. Chaudhary, this volume in any society and as such are approached as a primary subject in this book as the chapters traverse ten different countries on three continents: North America, United States, Latin America, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Asia, India, and Europe, United Kingdom, Ireland, Portugal, Finland, Estonia. Throughout these different places, women's lives are an interesting stage for observing the interaction between biology and culture, e.g., sex vs. gender, pregnancy and childbirth vs. transition to motherhood. The focus on the cultural variability of human experience opens the door for the search of commonalities so needed in psychological theorizing. Here, this search is directed by how cultural models of womanhood and motherhood constrain personal experiences, especially through developmental transitions. This book is ultimately an opportunity to approach women's lives from the perspective of the women themselves, particularly making audible and explicit their voices and the axis of logic that structures their world. Undoubtedly, it is a valuable opportunity for women and men interested in understanding and constructing human experience inside better worlds. Globalisation, Geopolitics,
