Esco, 2020-05-21 The desire to improve muscle function and prevent overuse injuries from exercise and throughout training has led to the development of various methods to aid recovery and track readiness to perform Ergogenic aids such as cold water immersion massage and dynamic recovery procedures may have positive effects but the results of the related research remain equivocal Furthermore novel interventions in this scenario like compression garments ice vests and photobiomodulation therapy are promising but need more evidence based data to support their effectiveness Similarly to properly monitor individual physical conditioning there is a growing interest toward unobtrusive measures to accurately represent physiological status during and or after exercise There are several techniques being used such as subjective ratings of well being heart rate monitoring hormonal and hematological profile assessments However more sensitive indexes like heart rate variability and muscle activation voluntary and or involuntary are arising as attractive alternatives that may delineate physical conditioning status and readiness to perform more precisely than the aforementioned measures The purpose of this Research Topic is to critically evaluate and summarize recent data from observational and intervention studies related to non invasive methods designed to promote recovery and objectively monitor training status Their association to physical performance and physiological recovery in athletes during training and competition is a major focus of this Topic      Current Index to Journals in Education ,1987      Neurorehabilitation In Neurotrauma: Treating Traumatic Brain and Spinal Cord Injuries Fernando Zanela Arêas, Hang Jin Jo, Guilherme Peixoto Tinoco Arêas , Lora Watts, 2024-09-23 Traumatic Brain Injuries TBI and Spinal Cord Injuries SCI can have long term adverse effects on populations including an increased risk of mortality enduring disabilities and other long term health problems Both of these injuries affect large numbers of people with between 250 000 and 500 000 people affected by a spinal cord injury every year according to the WHO and between 27 and 69 million people estimated to have been affected by a Traumatic Brain Injury worldwide The effects of such injuries are far reaching and include loss of motor functions impaired neurotransmission neuroinflammation apoptotic cell death among others and can cause persisting cognitive degradation and impairments However there exist a number of rehabilitative and regenerative processes and methods that help to restore motor functions and limit enduring disabilities within those affected by TBI and SCI principally to facilitate neuroplasticity      Reports of Cases Argued and Determined in the Supreme Court of the State of Wisconsin Wisconsin.
