Sprachphilosophie / Philosophy of Language / La philosophie du langage. 2. Halbband Marcelo Dascal,Dietfried Gerhardus,Kuno Lorenz,Georg Meggle,2008-07-14 Keine ausf hrliche Beschreibung f r SPRACHPHILOSOPHIE DASCAL U A 2 TLBD HSK 7 2 E BOOK verf gbar   In Search of Universal Grammar Terje Lohndal,2013-01-17 This volume in honor of Jan Terje Faarlund covers the areas in which he has contributed to linguistic theorizing ranging from in depth studies of Norwegian and Scandinavian grammar both synchronically and diachronically to work on the Indian language Chiapas Zoque The book is organized thematically with two chapters on each topic The grammar of the Scandinavian languages Tor A farli and Christer Platzack language policies and sociolinguistics Unn R yneland and Peter Trudgill French Hans Petter Helland and Christine Meklenborg Salvesen language change Werner Abraham and Elly van Gelderen lesser studied languages Alice Harris and Jerry Sadock language acquisition David Lightfoot and Marit Westergaard and language evolution Erika Hagelberg and Salikoko Mufwene This book will be of interest to a wide range of readers from students to scholars working on any of the areas covered   On the Origin of Language: Jean-Jacques Rousseau, Essay on the Origin of Languages John H. Moran,Alexander Gode,1966   Neurobiology of human language and its evolution: Primate and Nonprimate Perspectives Constance Scharff,Angela D. Friederici,Michael Petrides, The evolution of human language has been discussed for centuries from different perspectives Linguistic theory has proposed grammar as a core part of human language that has to be considered in this context Recent advances in neurosciences have allowed us to take a new neurobiological look on the similarities and dissimilarities of cognitive capacities and their neural basis across both closely and distantly related species A couple of decades ago the comparisons were mainly drawn between human and non human primates investigating the cytoarchitecture of particular brain areas and their structural connectivity Moreover comparative studies were conducted with respect to their ability to process grammars of different complexity So far the available data suggest that non human primates are able to learn simple probabilistic grammars but not hierarchically structured complex grammars The human brain which easily learns both grammars differs from the non human brain among others in how two language relevant brain regions Broca s area and superior temporal cortex are connected structurally Whether the more dominant dorsal pathway in humans compared to non human primates is causally related to this behavioral difference is an issue of current debate Ontogenetic findings suggest at least a correlation between the maturation of the dorsal pathway and the behavior to process syntactically complex structures although a causal prove is still not available Thus the neural basis of complex grammar processing in humans remains to be defined More recently it has been reported that songbirds are also able to distinguish between sound sequences reflecting complex grammar Interestingly songbirds learn to sing by imitating adult song in a process not unlike language development in children Moreover the neural circuits supporting this behavior in songbirds bear anatomical and functional similarities to those in humans In adult humans the fiber tract connecting the auditory cortex and motor cortex dorsally is known to be involved in the repetition of spoken language This pathway is present already at birth and is taken to play a major role during language acquisition In songbirds detailed information exist concerning the interaction of auditory motor and cortical basal ganglia processing during song learning and present a rich substrate for comparative studies The scope of the Research Topic is to bring together contributions of researchers from different fields who investigate grammar processing in humans non human primates and songbirds with the aim to find answers to the question of what constitutes the neurobiological basis of grammar learning Open questions are Which brain networks are relevant for grammar learning Is there more than one dorsal pathway one from temporal cortex to motor cortex and one to Broca s area and if so what are their functions Has the ability to process sequences of a given hierarchical complexity evolved in different phylogenetic lines birds primates other vocal production learners such as bats Is the presence of a sensory to motor circuit in humans a precondition for development of a dorsal pathway between the temporal cortex and Broca s area What role do subcortical structures Basal Ganglia play in vocal and grammar learning The Evolution of Language C. Scott-Philips Thomas,2012 Proceedings of Evolang IX the 9th International Conference on the Evolution of Language The Evolang conferences are the leading international conferences for new findings in the study of the origins and evolution of language They attract a multidisciplinary audience The proceedings are an important resource for researchers in the field A Search for the Origins of Human Speech Shozo Kojima,2003 An unrivaled world authority in the area Shozo Kojima presents a detailed overview of chimpanzees auditory sense and vocalization and demonstrates how human speech has evolved Based on unique longitudinal studies over a few decades Kojima has put together his theories and findings into a single volume making them available to an international readership for the first time This book is a joint publication with Kyoto University Press The New Illustrated Library of Science and Invention: A history of communications ,1963 The First Word Christine Kenneally,2007-07-19 An accessible exploration of a burgeoning new field the incredible evolution of language The first popular book to recount the exciting very recent developments in tracing the origins of language The First Word is at the forefront of a controversial compelling new field Acclaimed science writer Christine Kenneally explains how a relatively small group of scientists that include Noam Chomsky and Steven Pinker assembled the astounding narrative of how the fundamental process of evolution produced a linguistic ape in other words us Infused with the wonder of discovery this vital and engrossing book offers us all a better understanding of the story of humankind *The History of Roman Law, from the Text of Ortolan's "Histoire de la Législation Romaine Et Généralisation Du Droit" (edition of 1870).
