Presidential Science Advisors Roger Pielke, Roberta A. Klein, 2010-06-16 For the past 50 years a select group of scientists has provided advice to the US President mostly out of the public eye on issues ranging from the deployment of weapons to the launching of rockets to the moon to the use of stem cells to cure disease The role of the presidential science adviser came under increasing scrutiny during the administration of George W Bush which was highly criticized by many for its use and some say misuse of science This edited volume includes for the first time the reflections of the presidential science advisers from Donald Hornig who served under Lyndon B Johnson to John Marburger the previous science advisor on their roles within both government and the scientific community It provides an intimate glimpse into the inner workings of the White House as well as the political realities of providing advice on scientific matters to the president of the United States The reflections of the advisers are supplemented with critical analysis of the role of the science adviser by several well recognized science policy practitioners and experts This volume will be of interest to science policy and presidential history scholars and students

Meeting, 1986 If at one time we thought that the movement to science would yield unification of the discipline it is now apparent that there are many roads to science Still it is important for us to consider yet again what the appropriate goals are for our scientific enterprise What works in theory building induction and deduction prediction and control the search for useful principles to guide us examining these questions we can build a better science Political science has come so far as a discipline that different schools and scholars have different interpretations of science in the study of politics and that diversity is important to maintain Advances made in the study of political institutions and behavior are described in 12 essays from the 1983 annual meeting of the American Political Science Association They do not employ any single approach to the study of the science of politics Taken as a whole they illustrate the multiplicity of interpretations that are presently given to the common enterprise Science as a Commodity Michael Gibbons, Björn Wittrock, 1985 NATO Letter, 1965
