Philosophical questions about the arts go naturally with other kinds of questions about them Art is sometimes said to be an historical concept But where in our cultural and biological history did art begin If art is related to play and imagination do we find any signs of these things in our nonhuman relatives Sometimes the other questions look like ones the philosopher of art has to answer Anyone who thinks that interpretation in the arts is an activity that leaves the intentions of the author behind needs to explain how and why this differs so fundamentally from ordinary conversational interpretation where the only decent models we have are ones that depend crucially on the recovery of intention Anyone who thinks that imaginative literature has anything to tell us about time had better have a position on how earlier and later relate to past and future Anyone who thinks that empathy plays a role in literary engagement had better have a psychologically plausible account of what empathy is Philosophical questions about the arts also go naturally with other kinds of philosophical questions we can think constructively about representation in art without thinking about representation text meaning reference and existence get similarly drawn into the conversation Some ideas that philosophers of art deal with emerge from other disciplines In literary theory an enormous amount of attention has been lavished on tracing the sources of unreliability in narrative Is the result adequate to the details of the particular works we call unreliable Contemporary film theory is generally hostile to the fiction documentary distinction Are there in fact any grounds for this This book of thirteen connected essays examines questions of all these kinds It ranges from the semantics of proper names through the pragmatics of literary and filmic interpretation to the aesthetic function of stone age implements Some of the essays have not been published before some that have are here substantially revised     The Comprehensive Unabridged Henry's Commentary on the New Testament ... Matthew Henry, 1870     The Bookman , 1897     Augusta: Or, The Refuted Slanders of Thirty Years Ago on the Late Miss Sellon and Her Sisters, Once More Refuted ... Mary Anne H.
