Congress. Senate. Committee on the Judiciary. Subcommittee on Immigration and Refugee Affairs, 1988 Central American Studies and Temporary Relief Act of 1987 United States. Congress. House. Committee on Rules. Subcommittee on Rules of the House, 1987 Salvadoran Migration to the United States Segundo Montes, García Vázquez García, 1988 Immigration, Process and Policy Thomas Alexander Aleinikoff, David A. Martin, 1985 Michigan Law Review , 1987 The Sanctuary Trial David Matas, International Commission of Jurists (1952-), University of Manitoba. Legal Research Institute, 1989 This book deals with the trial that took place in Tucson Arizona in 1985 1986 involving leading members of the Sanctuary Movement D Matas a lawyer in Winnipeg and instructor at the Faculty of Law at the University of Manitoba was an observer at the trial for the International Commission of Jurists in Geneva Mr Matas s report on the trial falls into three parts In the first part he gives a background to the trial He describes human rights violations in El Salvador and Guatemala and the circumstances leading to denial of protection of Central American refugees in Mexico He then looks at the difficulties aliens face in entering the United States coerced voluntary departure and detention Various detention centres in the United States are described as well as US laws relating to detention A separate chapter deals with the United States claims system and extended voluntary departure A history of the Sanctuary Movement is also presented In the second part of the book Mr Matas focuses on the trial itself He gives an overview of the parties involved the charges presented the cases for both sides and the verdict and sentence The third part of the book offers a commentary on the trial Mr Matas not only examines the activities of the prosecution defence and the judge but he analyses the relevance of international law to the case and the relationship of international law to United States law Finally the author discusses the relevance of the trial to Canada and Canadian refugee law Houston Journal of International Law , 1985 Information Services on Latin America , 1993-04 Clippings of Latin American political social and economic news from various English language newspapers The New American , 1980 The American University Journal of International Law and Policy , 1986 Immigration Journal , 1979 Should the United States be Prohibited from Military Intervention in the Western Hemisphere? , 1982 Salvadorans in the United States , 1983 This report examines the controversy concerning the legal status of Salvadorian refugees in the United States of which there are estimated to be from 300 000 to 500 000

Approximately 25 000 have applied for asylum and many have been deported from the United States The authors maintain that asylum is inappropriate because most Salvadorians have a fear of generalized violence rather than of individual persecution The report studies and documents conditions in El Salvador which are found to be characterized by violence and instability resulting in a breakdown of the basic framework of social and economic life It provides evidence to demonstrate the particular vulnerability of displaced persons The authors argue that refoulement of Salvadorians should be abolished immediately and that they should be granted extended voluntary departure status EVD EVD is granted at the discretion of the Attorney General and allows citizens of countries experiencing dangerous conditions to remain temporarily in the United States and to obtain permission to work Finally the authors argue that Salvadorians present a compelling humanitarian case and have a legitimate fear of refoulement Documentation on the fate of Salvadorians who have been deported is appended
