Global and Local Art Histories Celina Jeffery, Gregory Minissale, 2009-03-26 There are now many books on postcolonial theory yet relatively few of them gather together sustained dynamic and insightful analyses of visuality art and art history outside of hegemonic Euro American themes and concerns Global and Local Art Histories explores what it means to have a global and local experience of art The 15 essays published here suggest ways of interpreting works of art from a broad range of cultural perspectives many of them transcultural Here are voices contesting concepts of history and culture evaluating and exploring global and local identities in a changing world Because of the variety of different approaches and cultural perspectives that Global and Local Art Histories brings together the book presents a unique opportunity to question what we mean by that dangerously globalising category the work of art and art history exploring global approaches that challenge such falsely universalising rubrics

Human Rights Policing Peter Marina, Pedro Marina, 2022-10-14 Relying on intense ethnographic research and extensive experiences teaching human rights policing to police officers this book teaches law enforcement professionals how to apply human rights to their everyday interactions with community members The data collected throughout this research process offers the reader first hand accounts of police officers addressing the most important human rights as they relate to policing telling stories of using their human agency while on the job and providing insights into their discussions with community members on human rights among other important topics Human rights remain a relatively new concept in human civilization but one largely unrealized at this point in history Can police officers serve as the harbingers of human rights in a world that desperately needs it We say yes It starts with applying human rights to police work But this book does more than teach police officers how to apply human rights to their careers It reimagines the institution of law enforcement as we push toward the later stages of modernity Refusing to tell readers what to think this book provides the intellectual tools on how to think about policing in new and creative ways It seeks to bring out the readers full creative potential as law enforcement agents police officers and criminal justice professionals and activists This book advances new ideas throughout each chapter on how to make human rights policing a reality The ideas in each chapter build on each other offering a small piece of the puzzle and all the steps necessary to advance the goals of human rights policing The book 1 analyzes the United Nations Declaration of Human Rights and how it applies to policing 2 develops a three fold typology called Human Rights Policing Social Interactions 3 discusses the relationship between the use of power and human rights 4 explains the power of human agency to transcend the ordinary 5 uncovers the creation of folk devils that threaten human rights 6 describes how to use the sociological imagination to understand community members 7 reveals the importance of storytelling to see the world from the actor s point of view 8 discusses the double consciousness and the creation of the other 9 describes what we call soulful policing and engaging with the community Chicago style and 10 provides social policy suggestions at both the national level and local policing level This book will challenge the reader in fascinating and highly surprising ways to think about and further to reimagine policing as we push toward the future It will appeal to professionals at all levels of law enforcement and will be useful in programs offering degrees and or certificates to students of criminal justice Campsite Charlie

Hailey,2008-06-01 Camping is perhaps the quintessential American activity We camp to escape to retreat to find ourselves The camp serves as a home away from home where we might rethink a deliberate life We also camp to find a new collective space where family and society converge Many of us attended summer camps and the legacies of these childhood havens form part of American culture In Campsite Charlie Hailey provides a highly original and artfully composed interpretation of the cultural significance and inherently paradoxical nature of camps and camping in contemporary American society Offering a new understanding of the complex relationship between place time and architecture in an increasingly mobile culture Hailey explores campsites as places that necessitate a unique combination of contrasting qualities such as locality and foreignness mobility and fixity temporality and permanence and public domesticity Camping methods reflect the rigid flexibility of the process leaving home arriving at a site clearing an area making and then finally breaking camp The phases of this sequence are both separate and indistinct To understand this paradox Hailey emphasizes the role of process He constructs a philosophical framework to elucidate the placefulness or sense of place of such temporary constructions and provides alternative understandings of how we think of the home and of public versus private dwelling spaces Historically camps have been used as places for scouting out future towns for clearing provisional spaces and for making semipermanent homes away from home To understand how cultures of camping develop and accommodate this dynamic mix of permanence and flexibility Hailey looks at three basic qualities of the camp as a site for place making as a populist precursor for modern built environments and as a method Hailey's creative and philosophical approach to camps and camping allows him to construct links between such diverse projects as the philosophers camps of the mid nineteenth century the idiosyncratic camping clubs that arose with the automobile culture in the early 1920s and more recent uses of campsites as temporary housing for those displaced by Hurricane Katrina In Campsite Hailey makes a singular and significant contribution to current studies of place and vernacular architecture while also reconfiguring methods of research in cultural studies architectural theory and geography
