Recasting The World:

A World Recast Simon Serfaty, 2012-10-12 The end of the unipolar moment completes the passing of a Western era that was prolonged for half a century when the United States took over for a defeated and exhausted group of European states after World War II Distinguished scholar Simon Serfaty vigorously argues that while it is possible and even desirable to acknowledge the passing of the Western era it is exaggerated to present it as an irreversible decline of the West relative to an irresistible rise of the Rest Rather he shows that the unfolding post Western moment will be messy In addition to the United States and the states of Europe as a Union the new cast of significant powers will involve a dozen or more countries emerging powers like China and India postimperial powers such as Japan and Russia new influentials like Brazil and Turkey pivot states like Egypt and Pakistan nuisance states like Iran failed or failing states like North Korea and Sudan and others Echoes of a Sarajevo moment played out this time in the greater Middle East the new global Balkans for the twenty first century But Serfaty convincingly contends that even during a zero polar moment of geopolitical transition American power remains superior and thus indispensable though no longer decisive Western power stands on top and thus is inescapable though no longer exclusive and even as the Rest gains broadly in stature and reach it is unlikely to achieve preponderance any time soon This powerful and provocative book should be read by all who share a deep concern for the future of America and a recast world

Multilingual Literature as World Literature Jane Hiddleston, Wen-chin Ouyang, 2021-05-06 Multilingual Literature as World Literature examines and adjusts current theories and practices of world literature particularly the conceptions of world global and local reflecting on the ways that multilingualism opens up the borders of language nation and genre and makes visible different modes of circulation across languages nations media and cultures The contributors to Multilingual Literature as World Literature examine four major areas of critical research First by looking at how engaging with multilingualism as a mode of reading makes visible the multiple pathways of circulation including as aesthetics or poetics emerging in the literary world when languages come into contact with each other Second by exploring how politics and ethics contribute to shaping multilingual texts at a particular time and place with a focus on the local as a site for the interrogation of global concerns and a call for diversity Third by engaging with translation and untranslatability in order to consider the ways in which ideas and concepts elude capture in one language but must be read comparatively across multiple languages And finally by proposing a new vision for linguistic creativity beyond the binary structure of monolingualism versus multilingualism The Nation in the Global Era Jerry Harris,2009-05-15 The Nation in the Global Era Conflict and Transformation offers unique perspectives into a range of important current topics for both activists and scholars concerned with globalization The articles combine the study of globalization as an integrated world system with the specifics of how individual nations and groups are inserted into the larger economic social cultural and political patterns This essential approach seeks out those forces that create a shared world system yet understands the multiple levels and variances under which that system develops Chapters explore the relationship between class and state under the impact of globalization how nations particularly in the South are affected by globalization and the development of national identity and consciousness within the context of global relationships Contributors include JoAnn Chirico Ryan D Griffiths Magda von der Heydt Coca Ismael Hossein zadeh Kwangkun Lee Patrick Loy Cori Madrid Georgina Murray Greg Nowell Rubin Patterson Isa as R Rivera Lorena Garcia Ruiz Ivan Savi David Schweickart Sandeep Sen Jason Struna John W Sutherlin Kumru Toktamis Joshua W Walker Veda Ward William Tabb Originally published as Volume 8 2 3 2009 of Brill s journal Perspectives on Global Development and Technology

Post-mediaeval sermons recast, from the conciones of M. Faber and J. de Barzia, by W.R. Villiers Matthias Faber,1888 Recasting Ancient Egypt in the African Context Clinton Crawford,1996 This is a timely work which seeks to place Egypt in its true historical context It captures the substantial unmistakable evidence for the indigenous African origin of the ancient Egyptians It also examines the genius behind their invaluable achievement in concretizing and codifying the hieroglyphic system of writing that they inherited from their ancestors It explains their mastery of the arts and sciences as displayed in their monumental architectural feats And finally it analyzes their highly organized not surprisingly matriarchal social system which made it possible for so many of their unsurpassed contributions to be bequeathed to human cultures everywhere Unlike conventional treatments of ancient Egypt however this innovative text renders the collected data accessible to layman and expert alike through its framework of suggested curriculum outlines thus ensuring this book s usefulness to the general public as well as to educational institutions Professor Crawford has made every effort to show that art and language are weapons in a nation s cultural survival In preparing this book with the hope that it will be used in a multicultural curriculum he has opened a new educational door by showing the true significance of ancient Egyptian art and language John Henrik Clarke Professor Emeritus Hunter College Blending Egyptology with progressive education philosophy Crawford argues that Egyptian studies with a focus on art and language is a necessary and empowering course of study for African American students and for students from other backgrounds as well Keith Gilyard Syracuse University Dr Crawford cites chapter and verse as to how we can naturally fashion the curriculum to reflect both our diverse legacies and contributions to society and in so doing render diverse and sundry individual subject areas genuinely interdisciplinary I sincerely hope that this fine work gets the broad airing it deserves If enough educators are exposed to it I am certain it will play an important part in energizing the studies that take place in schools across the nation Arthur Lewin Baruch College
