Congress. House. Committee on Un-American Activities, 1967      The Vietnam War on Campus Marc J. Gilbert, 2001 Previous analyses of the student antiwar movement during the Vietnam War have focussed almost exclusively on a few radical student leaders and upon events that occurred at a few elite East Coast universities This volume breaks new ground in the treatment it affords critiques of the war offered by conservative students in its assessment of antiwar sentiment among Midwestern and Southern college students and in its investigation of antiwar protests in American high schools It also provides fresh insight through a discussion of the ways in which American films depicted the student movements and an examination of the role of women and religion in the campus wars of the Sixties and Seventies The campus dimensions of the antiwar movement were more broad based and more diverse in membership roots and strategy than is often assumed Each essay in this collection strives not only to present a fair minded picture of the impact of the Vietnam War on campus but also to offer balanced reflections on its significance for today's body politic Contributing authors conclude leading scholars on the war's impact on American society and two artists closely associated with that conflict Vietnam veteran writer and poet W D Ehrhart and Country Joe McDonald author of the antiwar era anthem I Feel Like I'm Fixing to Die Rag      Journal of the American Institute of Graphic Arts, 1972      All Power to the People Jason Michael Ferreira, 2003      Revitalizing Urban Neighborhoods William Dennis Keating, Norman Krumholz, Philip Star, 1996 Since the 1950s and the advance of urban renewal local governments and urban policy have focused heavily on the central business district However such development has all but ignored the inner city neighborhoods that continue to struggle in the shadows of high rise America This analysis of urban neighborhoods in the United States from 1960 to 1995 presents fifteen essays by scholars of urban planning and development Together they show how urban neighborhoods can and must be preserved as economic cultural and political centers      Investigation of Students for a Democratic Society United States. Congress. House. Committee on Internal Security, 1969      The Nation, 1968      CIS Annual, 1971      Disciplining Democracy David S. Busch, 2025-03-15 Disciplining Democracy reveals the political consequences for the triumph of service learning as the dominant pedagogical model of civic engagement in the modern American university Volunteer based civic engagement programs in higher education are popularly understood as curricular opportunities that enable young people to engage as citizens in campus and public life But as David S Busch argues these civic programs are also emblematic of a new political tradition in American higher education a culture of disciplining democracy that polices the boundaries of appropriate forms of citizenship both for the student and for the university itself Looking at seven different universities across two political eras Busch unearths a common institutional trend that student activists demand for action education in the 1960s a demand that many believed would reimagine the political role of the university was reconstituted as university sponsored volunteer programs by the 1980s Disconnected from their political roots and visions these programs became the source for the promotion of service learning as the primary model of the new civics in American higher education and an integral part of institutional strategies for responding to student activism Embraced by universities big and small private and public the triumph of service learning as the new civics narrowed the political terrain of engaged citizenship and set limits on the modern American university's mission In excavating the genealogy of the new civics and its institutional legacy Disciplining Democracy offers a new way to understand the university as a political actor in American life      Democracy from the Heart Greg Calvert,1991      Book of Days C.
