Ireland and Ecocriticism Eóin Flannery, 2015-10-05 This book is the first truly interdisciplinary intervention into the burgeoning field of Irish ecological criticism Providing original and nuanced readings of Irish cultural texts and personalities in terms of contemporary ecological criticism Flannery's readings of Irish literary fiction poetry travel writing non fiction and essay writing are ground breaking in their depth and scope Explorations of figures and texts from Irish cultural and political history including John McGahern Derek Mahon Roger Casement and Tim Robinson among many others enable and invigorate the discipline of Irish cultural studies and international ecocriticism on the whole This book addresses the need to impress the urgency of lateral ecological awareness and responsibility among Irish cultural and political commentators to highlight continuities and disparities between Irish ecological thought writing and praxis and those of differential international writers critics and activists and to establish both the singularity and contiguity of Irish ecological criticism to the wider international field of ecological criticism With the introduction of concepts such as ecocosmopolitanism deep history ethics of proximity Gaia Theory urban ecology and postcolonial environmentalism to Irish cultural studies it takes Irish cultural studies in bracing new directions Flannery furnishes working examples of the necessary interdisciplinarity of ecological criticism and impresses the relevance of the Irish context to the broader debates within international ecological criticism Crucially the volume imports ecological critical paradigms into the field of Irish studies and demonstrates the value of such conceptual dialogue for the future of Irish cultural and political criticism This pioneering intervention exhibits the complexity of different Irish cultural and historical responses to ecological exploitation degradation and social justice

Lines on the Land Scott Herring, 2004 Lines on the Land Writers Art and the National Parks Scott Herring The nineteenth century photographer William Henry Jackson once complained of the skepticism with which early descriptions of Yellowstone were met the place was too wondrous to be believed The public demanded proof and a host of artists and writers obliged These early explorers possessed a vigorous devotion to the young nation's wilderness the naturalist John Muir famously toured the land from Wisconsin to Florida on foot and through their work established aesthetic categories that exist to this day In Lines on the Land Scott Herring contends that these writers and artists were canon makers recognizing the national parks as naturally occurring works of art and conferring upon them a cultural prestige the parks were the splendid focal points of the American landscape These early canonizing works are homages to a vast untouched wilderness This praise would gradually give way however to a distinctly American anger what Herring calls outraged idealism Later generations were faced with a changing culture that had imperfectly absorbed and even misrepresented the national park aesthetic The postwar park was overrun by cars and tourists who could not possibly match the pioneering naturalists profound commitment to and appreciation for their surroundings The collective tone of the parks chroniclers as a result evolved from celebration of awesome beauty to indignation over the perceived corruption of the parks both as an ideal and as actual physical settings Herring traces this shift through the work of a wide spectrum of creative minds from early figures such as Muir and Thomas Moran to later observers of the parks such as Ansel Adams Sylvia Plath Edward Abbey and Rick Bass The text is punctuated by autobiographical interchapters in which Herring relates the book's chief themes to his own experiences in Yellowstone National Park Under the Sign of Nature Explorations in Ecocriticism Mountains, Rivers, and the Great Earth Jason M.
