Global Climate Change and the Road to Extinction James A. Kushner, 2009 As nations and corporations discuss and undertake reform measures to slow or reverse the trend of global warming, many questions arise. What strategies exist to reverse the problems caused by greenhouse gases collecting in our atmosphere? What steps can be taken to reduce emissions? This book looks at strategies that can and in most cases must be undertaken at the personal, corporate and governmental levels of municipalities, counties, states, nations and within the international community. This book is designed to look at broad changes that are necessary and to explore the specific policies and mechanisms that are needed to implement them. After reviewing the relevant science and potential consequences of global climate change, every facet of life is reviewed for sustainability to determine opportunities for reducing carbon emissions through alternative technology and conservation practices. The chapters explore these opportunities and discuss the significance of our policies on agricultural and food land use planning, brownfield development, redevelopment, consumption, economic development, education, emergency preparedness, energy, housing and construction, management of federal lands, seas, population, species protection, transportation and water. The alternative to the strategies described is extinction.
