McGilton, 2024-12-26 Worldwide there is a generalized trend toward aged societies Between 2015 and 2050 the proportion of the world s population over 60 years will nearly double from 12% to 22% As life expectancy continues to increase and natality rates lower not only the composition of countries will change but also its health landscape However an increased life expectancy does not necessarily mean a healthy life In most high income countries more than 20% of those years are lived in ill health due to chronic conditions caused by non communicable diseases which compromises functional ability and well being key components of healthy aging In this way not only people s lives but also societal structures are being affected Based on the life course approach to healthy aging aging starts from conception In this regard the promotion of healthy aging requires preventive strategies that enhance capacities during growth and development maintain them for as long as possible after maturity and slow down their rate of decline Moreover considering healthy aging across the lifespan entails focusing on different factors life opportunities and choices that might significantly influence health status lifestyle as well as health and social inequalities in older age and challenges the focus of most research on the topic which exclusively investigates the effect of influences operating in the later stages of life

Active and Healthy Aging and Quality of Life: Interventions and Outlook for the Future Yulan Lin, Waqas Sami, Mila Nu Nu Htay, Sudip Bhattacharya, 2024-04-15

The continuous growth of older adult populations as a consequence of demographic changes is a huge challenge To prevent costly and negative impacts effects on the population as a whole it is crucial that societies increase their knowledge of promoting good health among older adults to promote good health and a better quality of life in their later years Active aging is the process of optimizing opportunities for health participation and security in order to enhance quality of life as people age An active and healthy life has remained one of the most important aspirations for all people both young and older adults alike This ambition has become a genuine possibility for many due to a rising life expectancy among people of diverse attributes across the world While celebrating longer life and with more financial security in later life than ever before we need to challenge how these aspirations can be sustained through our own behavioural responses and through public policy institutional reforms and innovations The challenge is to identify recommend and promote strategies and interventions that stimulate and sustain the activity independence and health of people of all ages especially older adults and in the process promote the well being and quality of life of people and make public welfare systems more sustainable
