Setbacks ... a Memoir William McCloud, 2004-06-01 Growing up poor black and undereducated provided Bill McCloud with lots of challenges to overcome But these setbacks made him the success he is today Bill's mother Fannie who gave birth to five children by four different fathers left all of them to be raised by her strict mother Although illiterate and bound by a strict work ethic left over from slavery Grandma did her best Grandma taught her grandchildren the value of money and hard work When a child didn't perform as expected they were beaten and whippings were almost daily Because they lived on welfare 11 a month for food and 10 a month for rent Grandma refused to connect the electricity Water came from a well the toilet was an outhouse and winter heat was almost nonexistent God was to be respected by church attendance all day every Sunday Bill's mother Fannie came into his life when Grandma got sick but she didn't know the first thing about being a mother. In a role reversal Bill, who had learned how to be resourceful at an early age, became Fannie's support and she had him working at a bordello at age fifteen. Foregoing his dreams of education, he found other jobs and was supporting his whole family before he was twenty. Bill's efforts for the family were almost always undermined by Fannie's spendthrift, conniving ways. A fascinating and compelling story of overcoming the odds, Bill McCloud's memoir is touching, painful, inspiring, and even hilarious. Memoirs of the Faculty of Engineering, Okayama University, 1972 With Prejudice the War Memoirs of Marshal of the Royal Air Force Tedder, 1966 Memoirs of the School of Engineering, Okayama University, 1972

The Evolution of the Autobiography from 1770-1850 Heidi I. Stull, 1985
Autobiographical writings remained throughout long centuries relatively unaffected by literary modes and changes. From 1770-1850, new developments in literature, especially the emergence of the novel, as well as new trends in philosophy and aesthetics, ushered in a new era reflective of a search for greater consciousness and sensibility, a revolutionary mode of thought and life that profoundly affected the autobiographical genre. This study examines a number of autobiographies which herald or reflect these new trends and developments, how these and the autobiographer's changing objectives decisively enriched and modified the genre, and how they gradually stir the genre toward an inevitable identity crisis. Memoirs of Heinrich Schliemann Leo Deuel, Heinrich Schliemann, 1977
Heinrich Schliemann (German; 6 January 1822 – 26 December 1890) was a German businessman and a pioneer of field archaeology. He was an advocate of the historical reality of places mentioned in the works of Homer. Schliemann was an archaeological excavator of Hissarlik, now presumed to be the site of Troy, along with the Mycenaean sites Mycenae and Tiryns. His work lent weight to the idea that Homer's Iliad and Virgil's Aeneid reflect actual historical events. Wikipedia *Memoirs on Steel and Iron.
