Consumption, Media and Culture in South Africa Mehita Iqani, Bridget Kenny, 2017-10-02 This book is the first of its kind to bring together a collection of critical scholarly work on consumer culture in South Africa exploring the cultural political economic and social aspects of consumption in post Apartheid society From sushi and Japanese diplomacy to Queen Sophie s writhing gown from middle class Sowetan golfers to an indebted working class citizenry from wedding websites to wedding nostalgia from the liberation of consuming to the low wage labour of selling the chapters in this book demonstrate a variety of themes showing that to start with consumption rather than ending with it allows for new insights into long standing areas of social research By mapping exploring and theorizing the diverse aspects of consumption and consumer culture the volume collectively works towards a fresh set of empirically rooted conceptual commentaries on the politics economics and social dynamics of modern South Africa This effort in turn can serve as a foundation for thinking less parochially about neoliberal power and consumer culture On a global scale studying consumption in South Africa matters because in some ways the country serves as a microcosm for global patterns of income inequality race based economic oppression and hopes for the material betterment of life By exploring what consumption means on the local scale in South Africa the possibility arises to trace new global links and dissonances This book was originally published as a special issue of Critical Arts
