Singapore Economic Roundtable, March 2006 Manu Bhaskaran, 2006 Financial, Exchange Rate, and Wage Policies in Singapore, 1979-86 Ichiro Otani, 1988 Macroeconomic Management in the East Asian Newly Industrializing Economies Anis Chowdhury, 1991 Monetary Policy Regimes and Macroeconomic Outcomes Stefan Gerlach, Petra Gerlach-Kristen, 2006 This paper studies the relationship between macroeconomic behaviour and the monetary policy regime in Hong Kong and Singapore using data for 1984-2004. We estimate an econometric model comprising a Phillips curve, an IS curve and an equation for changes in the nominal effective exchange rate (NEER) which in the case of Singapore can be interpreted as a policy reaction function. The parameter estimates differ in two regards: the NEER responds to inflation in Singapore but not in Hong Kong and the autoregressive parameter for the output gap in Singapore is smaller than in Hong Kong. Overall, the variability of inflation has been lower in Singapore but the volatility of real economic activity has been similar in the two economies. Fundamentals of Sustainable Development Niko Roorda, 2025-01-28 This completely revised fourth edition of Fundamentals of Sustainable Development provides an accessible and interdisciplinary introduction to sustainable development for undergraduate and postgraduate students across the natural and social sciences and beyond. Building on the previous edition's user-friendly and comprehensive overview, this edition offers a macro and micro perspective on the challenges of sustainable holistic development, looking at the impacts on global society in addition to people, planet, and profit. It discusses in detail the benefits and limitations of the UN Sustainable Development Goals, linking these to new case studies throughout to provide a broad international lens and highlighting regionally specific environmental issues, ecological approaches, indigenous perspectives, and successful development strategies. The increasing risks of zoonoses and pandemics and their impact on sustainable development are discussed as human activities within nature rise as a result of climate change. Timely topics on sustainable business are introduced across the book, including carbon footprints, ecolabels, greenwashing, measuring and reporting, degrowth, and personal and professional action points. The book also taps into timely philosophical discussions relating to the Anthropocene, such as climate anxiety, emotional connection to nature, and more than human debates. For instructors and students, new and revised supplemental resources can be accessed via the book's website, including PowerPoints, lab-based exercises, such as spreadsheet modelling, debate assignments, and research tasks. This is the must-have resource for students and lecturers in all disciplines who have an interest in the sustainability of our planet, our human society, and global economy. *Singapore, Staff Report for the ... Dent, 2002 Singapore, South Korea, and Taiwan: East Asia's newly industrialised economies. The NIE-3 experienced a profound development transformation over recent decades. Christopher Dent makes a comparative study of their foreign economic policies highlighting how the NIE 3 have engaged with the international economic system in an increasingly dynamic way The book develops a new macro framework of foreign economic policy analysis that provides the structure for this study The author argues that the development context of the NIE 3 s foreign economic policies is grounded in their common development statism and semi peripheralisation He further contends that it is the pursuit of economic security that primarily motivates their respective foreign economic policies This new conceptualisation of economic security in the context of foreign economic policy will appeal to academics researchers and students in wide range of disciplines including Asian studies international relations international political economy economics and politics
