Shadow Rift:

Shadow Mission NJ Damschroder, 2016-03-07 Two months ago all was perfect for Roxie Sebastian She felt complete for the first time in her life after fusing with her lost angel soul Also She d kind of saved the world preventing a rogue angel from tearing open a rift that could have destroyed humanity and much more So why does everything suck so much It s not enough that her angel assigned mission prevents her from going to college and forces her to lie to her parents The cool powers that come along with being half angel She sucks at them The awesome boyfriend who helped her save her soul He s totally jealous and clingy just because he saw Roxie get kissed by the only other angel hybrid her age And now she finds out that angels aren t the whole story There are shadows too and a centuries old battle between angels and shadows that has somehow put Roxie right in the middle Forget fake homework and the easy memorable summer before college she s not having the stakes are suddenly life or death and the main casualty could be the one person she can t live without Curse of the Riftborn

Donovan Deleware, 2015-01-03 A serial killer has reigned free in the city of Ebria for longer than anyone could remember Some claimed it to be a vengeful spirit seeking justice in a city of corruption Others say it s a powerful undead practitioner of magic or worse yet both There are rumors it s one person and others saying it s an entire cabal Many have tried to bring the killer to justice but for centuries all have failed Meira Dyel a young woman plagued by a lifetime of nightmares is tasked to find the killer when Ryn her friend and mentor becomes the latest victim With the aid of her friend and fellow guildsman Darven she hunts for the Ebrian Slayer and learns a truth about herself so profound it threatens to unravel her already fragile psyche Delver Magic Book IX: Joint Intentions Jeff Inlo, 2015-03-18 After witnessing his own soul during an encounter with Reiculf the lord of all demons Ryson Acumen s unquenchable curiosity blossoms as he hopes to comprehend the larger meaning of his inner essence While he begins a quest of spiritual understanding he meets an old adversary on a quest of his own The wizard of crimson spells Neltus has lost his magical core Without it he is unable to embrace the red energy which served him in so many ways Determined to regain what was removed from him the coreless wizard takes uncharacteristic risks and without the delver s knowledge joins forces with creatures of far more wicked intent From the desert to the western shores Neltus leads Ryson through twisted passages of betrayal Foes from the past combine forces to threaten every level of existence and the delver faces a warped menace in a new realm of deceit In one devastating wave of upheaval demons are freed from the restrictions which held them within their breeding grounds Colossal fiends capable of destroying entire cities are unleashed on the land and even the spirit warrior who guards Ryson s hometown is unable to stop them The delver and his allies face a whirlwind of treachery as they stumble from one disaster to another While the threats to Uton continue to grow the delver takes control of the battle and brings the fight back to the demons breeding grounds Returning his focus to his initial quest Ryson breaks through new barriers and allows a growing enlightenment of his inner essence to guide him against his enemies A new perspective of the spirit offers the one path which may allow him to defeat

Detection and Characterization of Deep Water Wave Breaking Using Moderate Incidence Angle Microwave Backscatter from the Sea Surface Andrew Thomas Jessup,1990 The importance of wave breaking in both microwave remote sensing and air sea interaction has led to this investigation of the utility of a Ku Band CW Doppler scatterometer to detect and characterize wave breaking in the open ocean Field and laboratory measurements by previous authors of microwave backscatter from sharp crested and breaking waves have shown that these events can exhibit characteristic signatures in moderate incidence angle measurements of the radar cross section RCS and Doppler spectrum Specifically breaking events have been associated with polarization independent sea spikes in the RCS accompanied by increased mean frequency and bandwidth of the Doppler spectrum Simultaneous microwave video and environmental measurements were made during the SAXON experiment off Chesapeake Bay in the fall of 1988 The scatterometer was pointed upwind with an incidence angle of 45 degrees and an illumination area small compared to the wavelength of the dominant surface waves An autocovariance estimation technique was used to produced time series of the RCS mean Doppler frequency and Doppler spectral bandwidth in real time The joint statistics of the microwave quantities indicative of breaking are used to investigate detection schemes for breaking events identified from the video recordings The most successful scheme is based on thresholds in both the RCS and the Doppler bandwidth determined from joint distributions for breaking and non breaking waves Microwave events consisting of a sea spike in the RCS accompanied by a large bandwidth are associated with the steep forward face of waves in the early stages of breaking The location of the illumination area with respect to the phase of the breaking wave the stage of breaking development and the orientation of an individual crest with respect to the antenna look direction all influence the detect ability of a breaking event occurring in the vicinity of the radar spot Since sea spikes tend to occur on the forward face of waves in the process of breaking the whitecap associated with a given sea spike may occur after the crest of the wave responsible for the sea spike has passed the center of the illumination area Approximately 70% of the waves which produce whitecaps within a distance of 5m of the bore sight location are successfully identified by a threshold based detection scheme utilizing both RCS and bandwidth information The sea spike statistics are investigated as functions of wave field parameters and friction velocity u . For VV and HH polarization the frequency of sea spike occurrence and the sea spike contribution to the mean RCS show an approximately cubic dependence on u which is consistent with theoretical modelling and various measures of whitecap coverage. The data also suggest that the average RCS of an individual sea spike is not dependent on u . At high friction velocities $u > 40$ – 50 cm/s the contribution of sea spikes to the mean RCS is in the range of 5–10% for VV and 10–20% for HH. The wind speed dependence of the percentage of crests producing sea spikes is comparable to that of the fraction of breaking crests reported by previous authors. The percentage of wave crests producing sea spikes is found to vary approximately as $Re^{-1.5}$ where Re is a Reynolds number based on u and the dominant surface wavelength. This result agrees with measurements of the degree of wave breaking by previous authors and is shown to be consistent with a cubic dependence on u . Models for the probability of wave breaking as a function of moments of the wave height spectrum are compared to our results. The Doppler frequency and bandwidth measurements are also used to inquire into the kinematics of the breaking process.

Geomorphic Responses to Climatic Change William B. Bull, 1991

Climatic change and tectonics are two of the most current and intensively studied topics in geomorphology and paleontology today. In this volume, the first of a two-volume set, the response of landscapes to climatic change is discussed in light of the author's research over the past decade. Professor Bull first presents conceptual models for changing landscapes, then tests and develops concepts in a topical approach using as his base his extensive experience in the Middle East, western North America, and New Zealand. The basic topics of climate and paleoclimatology, vegetation, soils, genesis, and geochronology are discussed in each chapter as essential background and to assess the responses of geomorphic processes to climatic change. Descriptions of present climates are compared with paleoclimatic inferences. Geomorphic thresholds, feedback mechanisms, and response times to perturbations are common themes in the book, which is written primarily for graduate students and researchers.
