

10 Step Guide to Precision Teaching

Precision Teaching is an effective teaching strategy for ensuring high levels of fluency & accuracy of reading and spelling. It is a way of planning the learning of discrete, rote skills & knowledge for children whilst recording and monitoring their progress.

Step One: Identify a Child

Identify a child who would benefit from some PT+. You'll easily be able to identify these children because they are the ones making slower progress (especially in learning which involves applying concepts such as phonics). They may also have low self-esteem or be struggling to concentrate in class.

Stage Two: Choose the Skill to be Learned

Within the area the child is struggling in (e.g. reading), choose the specific skill we want them to learn (e.g. fluently reading the first 100 high frequency words, number bonds to X).

Stage Three: Establish a Baseline

Within the target skill we want the child to learn, we need to establish exactly where they are at i.e. what they can already do / what their next targets are (e.g. can read 17/100 high frequency words).

Stage Four: Set an Aim Rate

Use the ART rule (Action, Rate, Time) to set the 'Aim Rate'.

Example Aim Rate: "Child X can read 25 of the 100 HFW, without making errors, at a rate of at least 15 per minute."

This is how we are going to measure success for this child.

Stage Five: Choose Elements to Teach First

Choose around 5 words / sounds 'elements' initially (perhaps with 1 or 2 they already know to aid confidence), safe in the knowledge that we can increase or decrease this amount based on how quickly the child learns the skill.

Stage Six: Teach for 5-10 Minutes

Using your own methods or some of our Precision Teaching resources, spend 5-10 minutes with the child teaching the target elements of the skill. Frequency is key: short sessions 2-3 times a day see the greatest success / progress rates.

Stage Seven: Assess Using the PT Probe

Use the PT probe to assess the child's progress (watch PT+ video 2.4 on probe types to see how to conduct each different type of Precision Teaching probe) for one minute marking all correct and incorrect answers given in that time.

Stage Eight: Record Results

Either by hand or electronically, record the answers in the Precision Teaching chart and plot the graph.

Stage Nine: Repeat & Check for Progress

Steps 6-8 should now be repeated each day so that we can continue to teach the child the skill and check on the child's progress towards the aim rate. Track and monitor the level of progress to guide you on what to elements to either continue with or to replace. Where progress is seen, it's also good to find opportunities for generalisation of this learning into new contexts (helps to retain for longer).

Stage Ten: Move on to Next Phase

When our aim rate has been satisfactorily achieved (e.g. show fluency in recall for 3 days in a row) we can then move on to the next phase by choosing some new elements within the target skill to teach.

When all elements have been learned, the Precision Teaching program has been successfully completed for the child!

Action – What you want the child to do specifically e.g. to spell a word, identify a colour, recall a multiplication sum?

Rate – How many elements of the skill do you want the child to be able to perform in the allotted time? This can be informed by the factors mentioned earlier around type of task, needs of child etc. We can also adapt and set this after we have our baseline

Time – In PT we always want to know how many elements the child can complete in a minute so this is the time parameter you will set for your aim rate.
