Racism, Imperialism & Peace Herbert Aptheker, 1987 This volume presents a dialectical materialist analysis by a leading scholar activist Herbert Aptheker of issues confronting the United States today It brings together a representative sample of his continuing contributions to the writing of history his penetrating critiques of current historiography and his analysis of the impact of racism and imperialism both in history and at present The conclusion which Aptheker draws from this analysis is that the struggle for peace democracy and equality must continue and more importantly must be a struggle which unites and thereby strengthens each cause Throughout the analysis is informed by Marxist theory marked by a scathing indictment of racism and imperialism and touched with a deep sense of humanism The complexities of the current historical epoch require nothing less Editors preface page 7 Nature, Society, and Thought, 1987 National Legal
