Information Technology and Computer Applications in Public Administration G. David Garson, 1999-01-01 Information Technology and Computer Applications in Public Administration Issues and Trends constitutes a survey of many of the most important dimensions of managing information technology in the public sector In Part I chapters address general policy and administrative issues The chapters of Part II represent applied information technology skills needed by public managers Provided by publisher Digital Public Administration and E-Government in Developing Nations: Policy and Practice Halpin, Edward Francis, Griffin, David, Rankin, Carolynn, Dissanayake, Lakshman, Mahtab, Nazmunnessa, 2013-03-31 In recent years it has become apparent that there are very distinct gaps between developed and developing regions in the world especially in regards to e government systems infrastructures and processes Digital Public Administration and E Government in Developing Nations Policy and Practice examines e government from the perspective of developing nations and addresses issues and concerns of developing systems and processes This publication is a valuable and insightful tool for researchers practitioners policymakers and students in different fields who are interested in information systems public policies politics and media and communication studies ICT, Public Administration and Democracy in the Coming Decade A.J. Meijer, F. Bannister, M. Thaens, 2013-06-20 The physicist Neils Bohr allegedly wrote that Prediction is very difficult especially about the future Many academics believe that serious scholars should never attempt to write about the future but some awareness of the ways in which the future of e government may evolve is needed if well grounded long term decisions about issues such as infrastructures institutions and educational programs are to be made In addition future oriented research is of the utmost importance for informed public debate about technological developments with far reaching societal implications This book marks the 25th anniversary of the permanent study group on e government of the European Group for Public Administration and the papers here were first presented at their 2012 meeting in Bucharest Romania The invited authors were not asked for rigorous analyses based on systematic empirical research or deeply rooted in a theoretical framework instead they were challenged to write thoughtful and measured but provocative essays about ICT and public administration in the coming decade Their contributions are reflections on the nature of new and emerging technologies in the public sector and their impact on government and on democracy itself The book is divided into three sections the past and present as starting point for thinking about the future of e government imagining the future of government and implications for research and practice The many questions raised by developments in ICT for future public administration are presented in a clear and thought provoking manner and merit more debate This volume represents a departure from the normal run of academic publications It is intended both to provoke academics and administrators to think about questions which will affect all of our futures and to offer a range of creative ideas about how the opportunities presented by technology can be exploited to provide better government and governance
