Berenike and the Ancient Maritime Spice Route Steven E. Sidebotham, 2019-05-07

The legendary overland silk road was not the only way to reach Asia for ancient travelers from the Mediterranean. During the Roman Empire's heyday, equally important maritime routes reached from the Egyptian Red Sea across the Indian Ocean. The ancient city of Berenike, located approximately 500 miles south of today's Suez Canal, was a significant port among these conduits. In this book, Steven E. Sidebotham, the archaeologist who excavated Berenike, uncovers the role the city played in the regional, local, and global economies during the eight centuries of its existence. Sidebotham analyzes many of the artifacts, botanical and faunal remains, and hundreds of the texts he and his team found in excavations, providing a profoundly intimate glimpse of the people who lived, worked, and died in this emporium between the classical Mediterranean world and Asia.

Byzantine Trade, 4th-12th Centuries Marlia Mundell Mango, 2009. The papers here examine questions relating to the extent and nature of Byzantine trade from Late Antiquity into the Middle Ages. The Byzantine state was the only political entity of the Mediterranean to survive Antiquity and thus offers a theoretical standard against which to measure diachronic and regional changes in trading practices within the area and beyond. To complement previous extensive work on late antique long distance trade within the Mediterranean based on the grain supply amphorae and fine ware circulation, the papers concentrate on local and international trade.

Glass from Quseir Al-Qadim and the Indian Ocean Trade Carol Meyer, 1992. The final report on the first and second century AD and thirteenth and fourteenth century Islamic glass excavated at Quseir al Qadim on the Red Sea coast of Egypt. Describes the glass finds and their distribution from the Red Sea to Arabia, East Africa, and India, and raises questions about glassmaking technology and long range trade.

Connected by the Sea Lucy Blue, Frederick M. Hocker, Anton Englert, 2016-03-31. The 10th International Symposium on Boat and Ship Archaeology was held in Roskilde, Denmark, in 2003. The theme of the meeting was 'Connected by the Sea' and was designed to emphasize the role of the sea, seafaring, and watercraft as bridges rather than barriers. Maritime archaeology tends to take place within national borders with a national focus, yet the very premise of seafaring is the desire to travel beyond the horizon to establish contact with other places and cultures. The conference theme was chosen to encourage the maritime archaeological community to think in international terms.

Trade Relations in the Eastern Mediterranean from the Late Hellenistic Period to Late Antiquity Maria Berg Briese, Leif Erik Vaag, 2005 In the studies of ceramics the archaeological research tradition divides the Mediterranean into a Western and an Eastern region The research tradition in these two regions differs which has caused several problems in the understanding of Western and Eastern ceramics This book compares the two traditions and discusses the very important question of whether ceramics can give us a better understanding of economic social and cultural contexts
