A Systematic Approach

MARC S. MICOZZI, M.D., Ph.D.

*Director
National Museum of Health and Medicine
Associate Director
Armed Forces Institute of Pathology

This book provides a unique, synthetic treatment of postmortem change presented in a systematic fashion with attention to the relative chronologies of both physical and cultural factors that influence human and animal remains. The author integrates reports and observations in the anthropology/archaeology literature with material as appropriate from medicine, pathology, paleopathology, ethnography and the forensic sciences as well as reporting on his own original observations. In addition to discussing transformation of skeletal remains, comprehensive treatment is given to changes in soft tissue remains and to conditions under which said remains may be preserved postmortem. This book "fills in the blanks" where pathology has traditionally left off and before anthropology has traditionally begun with an integrated review of what anthropology traditionally considers. More and more anthropologists and forensic scientists are called upon to systematically interpret postmortem changes "from beginning to end," cutting across various fields of study. This is the first book to explore, explain and interpret all these aspects of postmortem change.

P. Buzhilova, Marii□a□ Borisovna Mednikova, Marii□a□ Vsevolodovna Dobrovol'skai□a□, 2014 In this latest volume in the Human Evolution Series Erik Trinkaus and his co authors synthesize the research and findings concerning the human remains found at the Sunghir archaeological site It has long been apparent to those in the field of paleoanthropology that the human fossil remains from the site of Sunghir are an important part of the human paleoanthropological record and that these fossil remains have the potential to provide substantial data and inferences concerning human biology and behavior both during the earlier Upper Paleolithic and concerning the early phases of human occupation of high latitude continental Eurasia But despite many separate investigations and published studies on the site and its findings a single and definitive volume does not yet exist on the subject This book combines the expertise of four paleoanthropologists to provide a comprehensive description and paleobiological analysis of the Sunghir human remains Since 1990 Trinkaus et al have had access to the Sunghir site and its findings and the authors have published frequently on the topic The book places these human fossil remains in context with other Late Pleistocene humans utilizing numerous comparative charts graphs and figures As such the book is highly illustrated in color Trinkaus and his co authors outline the many advances in paleoanthropology that these remains have helped to bring about examining the Sunghir site from all angles B.A.S.I.C. , 1968 Gene and Environment Interactions in Neurodevelopmental Disorders Lorenzo More, Carmem Gottfried, Patricia Pelufo Silveira, 2022-04-25 Zwangslose Abhandlungen aus dem Gebiet der normalen und pathologischen Anatomie , 1963 Current List of Medical Literature , 1959 Includes section Recent book acquisitions varies Recent United States publications formerly published separately by the U S Army Medical Library Pharmaceutical Abstracts , 1941 Neurology , 1963 Vols for 1951 include a separately paged numbered section American Academy of Neurology newsletter Archives of Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation , 1922 CSA Neurosciences Abstracts , 1985 Monthly with annual subject and author indexes Worldwide coverage of journal articles papers presented and books focused primarily on basic research in vertebrate and invertebrate neurosciences Arranged under broad topics e g genetics sleep and neurophysiology as well as miscellaneous topics book notices and proceedings Author subject indexes Index

Micozzi,1986 Understanding the processes of postmortem change in biologic systems is important to the forensic sciences Previous experimental studies of postmortem change in animals under field conditions made use of animal carcasses that had been incidentally exposed to the effects of freezing and thawing or mechanical damage or both and were limited to gross observations The current study was designed to document intrinsic processes of postmortem change and the effects of freezing thawing and mechanical injury under controlled conditions in the field using histologic and microbiologic techniques as well as gross observation Insect and microbiologic succession sequences and patterns of decomposition and disarticulation were observable over time Previously frozen thawed animals showed predominantly decay aerobic decomposition in the field while freshly killed animals showed predominantly putrefaction anaerobic decomposition Previously frozen animals showed the same sequence but accelerated rates of disarticulation Mechanically injured tissues showed accelerated rates of decomposition These findings have implications for the interpretation of results of previous studies as well as the interpretation of human and animal remains subjected to freezing and thawing
