Postoperative Thromboembolism Frequency Etiology Prophylaxis:

Postoperative Thromboembolism David Bergqvist, 2012-12-06 Our knowledge of postoperative thromboembolic complications has increased enormously over the past 2 decades particularly where diagnosis and prophylaxis are concerned. The 125 I fibrinogen method of diagnosing thrombosis has completely changed our concept of the frequency, occurrence and natural course of thrombosis and it has formed the basis of most thromboprophylactic studies. Concurrently with the development of this diagnostic method two methods for the prophylaxis of thrombosis have come into vogue namely low dose heparin and dextran. Both these methods were tested in very extensive studies during the seventies and their value has been unequivocally proved for reducing both the frequency of thrombosis with and without symptoms and the frequency of fatal pulmonary embolism. Thromboprophylaxis is not particularly common in surgery however and its general use is far from uncontested. It has been argued that not only does it complicate surgical activities and make them more expensive but it also involves an unacceptable number of other complications.

Prevention in Clinical Practice D.H. Becker, L.B. Gardner, 2012-12-06 Prevention of disease and injury including early identification of risks and disease and optimal control of potentially debilitating or fatal complications.

of chronic conditions is the area of clinical medicine that holds the greatest promise for improving human health Each year a long list of major but potentially preventable health problems exacts a terrible human and financial toll These problems urgently need our attention especially as major advances in curative medicine become more complex and costly Prevention of disease and injury may well be the central health issue of our time an issue of vital concern to every quarter of our society Now is a very good time to promote prevention Citizens and some social groups are increasingly aware of and interested in health and fitness issues There is great enthusiasm about even obsession with health and we are seeing an astonishing proliferation of health publications and media presentations for laymen fitness and weight control centers exercise programs health food stores disease support groups health education programs and do it yourself diagnostic kits All of this betokens an increased health consciousness on the part of public and perhaps signals greater individual accountability for health
