India, Urban Poverty Report 2009 India. Ministry of Housing and Urban Poverty Alleviation,2009 Urban India reports high incidence of poverty despite being hailed as a hub of growth and an instrument of globalization Poverty figures for urban areas are higher compared to rural areas in a large number of states This report looks at the process of globalization and development strategy in India to ask why poverty exists in urban areas and how the poor are being physically and economically absorbed in the system It analyses the processes of urbanization migration changes in the structure of the economy and the pattern of infrastructural investment with the aim of assessing their impact on the poor. Changes in urban governance legal system and the administrative structure have been reviewed to identify the problems faced by the poor and to focus on the systemic changes that need to be brought in. Thus it focuses on urbanization keeping poverty at the centre of analysis.

Indian Cities in Transition Annapurna Shaw, 2007. Urban India has been in transition for centuries but perhaps never more so than since the last decade of the twentieth century when the national economy was opened wide to international trade and competition. Indian Cities in Transition seeks to understand the nature of change that Indian cities are undergoing from a multidisciplinary perspective. There are seventeen essays in the volume encompassing the work of urban planners, geographers, demographers, social anthropologists, economists and political scientists. They examine the processes of demographic, environmental, economic, political and social change and their impact on Indian cities. Based on different aspects of change, the articles are categorised under five sub-themes: globalisation and urban restructuring, environmental impacts of liberalisation, economic dimensions of the post 1990s reforms, political economy of change in the planning and management of Indian cities and liberalisation and its micro level impacts.

Liberalisation and Urban Social Services Chandra Nath Ray, 2003. This book deals with the utilisation of health and education facilities in Ahmedabad in the context of liberalisation and will be useful to urban managers, policy makers, administrators and students of urban sociology.

Land, Rights and Innovation Geoffrey K. Payne, 2002. Every day millions of people around the world spend their hard earned income improving houses they do not officially own or legally occupy. The vast majority are poor householders in urban areas of the South where in some cities more than half the population lives in various types of unauthorized housing. As land in urban areas becomes more expensive and globalization accelerates the commercialization of urban land markets, people are forced to occupy unused government land or purchase agricultural land and build a house without permission. Activities that urban authorities are often seeking to prevent, Land Rights and Innovation examines the complex issues surrounding land tenure and the challenges they present for urban planners in the South and in the transition economies of Eastern Europe. Based on extensive research, the book brings together a diverse range of examples from 17 countries where the authorities, non-governmental organizations or communities have evolved practical innovative approaches to providing tenure for the urban poor. These widen the choices available for residents, encourage local investment to reduce poverty and facilitate the development of more equitable and efficient urban land markets. The inclusion of a chapter examining the legal issues of security of tenure as well as an introduction and a conclusion summarizing the way forward makes this book of value to all those responsible for formulating and implementing urban land tenure policies in the rapidly changing and expanding cities in the South and transition economies.
