Ethnic Conflict and Democratization in Africa

Harvey Glickman, 1995 III 484P 23CM Human Space Peter Petschauer, 1997-03-30 Americans are constantly debating issues of space the space we are the space we occupy and the way we treat others in or close to our spaces The exploration of these ideas is the core of this book The author argues that human beings as spatial entities are very adept at manipulating and using space In the process we often intrude on the space of others and ignore our impact on them For example the founders of the United States sought to safeguard the right of freedom of speech but did not offer ways to defend ourselves against abuses of such rights The book considers issues such as the balance between an individual's right to smoke and another's right not to be affected by that activity The discussion offers implications for education children's and women's issues environmental issues minority and ethnic concerns and human rights Environment & Planning A., 1995-07

Ethnonationalism and Political Systems in Europe Martijn A. Roessingh, 1996 In the last five years fifteen new European states have been created on the basis of claims by previously little known ethnonational groups This book explains this development It examines the cases of four European states Bulgaria the former Czechoslovakia Belgium and Finland and focuses particularly on the impact of political systems on the development of ethnonational relations Settler Colonialism and the Transformation of Anthropology Patrick Wolfe, 1999 Organized around a startling historical reconstruction of the political and theoretical conditions that produced the great anthropological controversy over doctrines of virgin birth this book argues that the allegation that natives do not understand the relation between sex and conception reveals a great deal about European colonial discourse and little if anything about indigenous belief As the author explores the links between metropolitan anthropological theory and local colonial politics from the nineteenth century to the present the specificity of settler colonialism and the ideological and sexual regimes that characterize it emerge with increasing clarity In addition to re-reading the history of anthropology and its intersections with colonial power this book obliges us to reconceptualize the heterogeneity of colonialism itself Back cover
