Postmodern Urbanism Nan Ellin, 1999 A comprehensive guide to the scope of contemporary urban design theory in Europe and the USA Parody Margaret A. Rose, 1993-09-09 In this definitive work Margaret Rose presents an analysis and history of theories and uses of parody from ancient to contemporary times and offers a new approach to the analysis and classification of modern late modern and post modern theories of the subject The author's Parody Meta Fiction 1979 was influential in broadening awareness of parody as a double coded device which could be used for more than mere ridicule In the present study she both expands and revises the introductory section of her 1979 text and adds substantial new sections on modern and post modern theories and uses of parody and pastiche which also discuss the work of theorists and writers including the Russian formalists Mikhail Bakhtin Hans Robert Jauss Wolfgang Iser Julia Kristeva Roland Barthes Michel Foucault Jacques Derrida Ihab Hassan Jean Baudrillard Fredric Jameson A S Byatt Martin Amis Charles Jencks Umberto Eco David Lodge Malcolm Bradbury and others London's 'Big Bang' Moment and its Architectural Conversations Stephen Rosser, 2025-06-30 This book explores the topic of architecture as a component of public discourse focussing on the reception of four high profile developments in the City of London the UK capital's financial district dating from the final years of the twentieth century During this time the City's mode of operation culture and built environment were all transformed as a result of the market deregulation process labelled Big Bang It was also a period which saw the subject of architecture attracting public and media attention becoming a prominent feature of national conversation The book examines the extensive and often contentious discourse generated by the four case study projects. It looks at how these projects were viewed and interpreted retrospectively when they had become part of the City's long and rich history. Topics explored include building and urban form on the eve of the millennium, the place of new development in a setting of unique historic importance, the iconic building and celebrity architect, and the role of then Prince Charles as an architectural critic. Also referenced are many of the broader issues of the day, including the Thatcher government policies and the preoccupations concerning London's infrastructure, public realm, inner city areas, and inequalities. Furthermore, ranging across the discourse is the theme of the relationship between buildings and global finance, foreshadowing later controversies concerning London's post-millennial towers and their impact on the capital's skyline. The book will be of interest to researchers and students of late twentieth-century British architecture and urban development, London's history, and UK public discourse in the 1980s, a decade of profound political, economic, and social change.

Multiform Owen Hopkins, Erin McKellar, 2021-02-23. Guest edited by Owen Hopkins and Erin McKellar. Our current moment is one of profound political and economic change. Historically, these moments of transition have seen a parallel period of cultural and notably architectural flux. In the late 1970s, this was manifested in Postmodernism. Today, a number of architects are looking again at this movement and redeploying a range of its tactics and approaches using contemporary methods and techniques. These include different modes of collage, formal reference and quotation, stylistic eclecticism, symbolism in form, material and ornament, and the bold expressive use of colour, both natural and synthetic. While the design that results from these multiform tactics and approaches has been seen as a kind of neo-Postmodernism, this issue argues that this is a simplistic and superficial reading. Instead, it posits this phenomenon as the architectural attempt, both conscious and unconscious, to reflect, grapple with, and make sense of the current political and economic transition and the backdrop of the climate emergency. Rather than responding to this situation by attempting to marshal architecture around a single unifying narrative, this issue makes the case for the transformative possibilities offered by an approach that is ad hoc, eclectic, and pluralist.
