The Learning Society in a Postmodern World Kenneth Wain, 2004 Lifelong learning has become a key concern as the focus of educational policy has shifted from mass schooling toward the learning society The shift started in the mid 1960s and early 1970s under the impetus of a group of writers and adult educators gravitating around UNESCO with a humanist philosophy and a leftist agenda The vocabulary of that movement was appropriated in the 1990s by other interests with a very different performativist agenda emphasizing effectiveness and economic outcomes This change of interest described in the book has signified the death of education The Learning Society in a Postmodern World explores different theoretical resources to respond to this situation mainly those that propose some restoration of an educated public or to the contrary individual self creation and uses the works of a broad range of philosophers and thinkers notably MacIntyre Habermas Foucault Derrida Rorty and Baudrillard In addition it raises important questions about postmodern and poststructuralist responses to education in the postmodern world Its comprehensiveness and historical background make it an essential textbook for theoretical courses in lifelong learning and in educational theory in general A broad range of interests and subject matter make it important reading for educators policy specialists media specialists researchers on the subject of lifelong learning and on the relation between education and the postmodern world political theorists philosophers and philosophers of education      Die Neubestimmung des Politischen Heike Kahlert, Claudia Lenz, 2001

Ackelsberg, 2010 Political participation in America supposedly the world's strongest democracy is startlingly low and many of the civil rights and economic equity initiatives that were instituted in the 1960s and 70s have been abandoned as significant proportions of the populace seem to believe that the civil rights battle has been won However rates of collective engagement like community activism are surprisingly high In Resisting Citizenship renowned feminist political scientist Martha Ackelsberg argues that community activism may hold important clues to reviving democracy in this time of growing bureaucratization and inequality This book brings together many of Ackelsberg's writings over the past 25 years combining her own field work and interviews with cutting edge research and theory on democracy and activism She explores these efforts in order to draw lessons and attempt to incorporate knowledge about current notions of democracy from those who engage in non traditional participation those who have in many respects been relegated to the margins of political life in the United States      Postmodern Studies, 1995      Feminism and Postmodern Theory Joan Nordquist, 1996      Öffentlichkeit - Geschichte eines kritischen Begriffs Russell A.
