Ethnographies of Grey Zones in Eastern Europe Ida Harboe Knudsen, Martin Demant Frederiksen, 2015-04-15 Over the last two decades Eastern European countries have experienced extensive changes in geo political relocations and relations leading to everyday uncertainty Based on ethnographic cases this anthology explores how grey zones of governance borders relations and invisibilities affect everyday life in contemporary Eastern Europe

Eurasian Borderlands Tone Bringa, Hege Toje, 2016-11-11 This book examines changing and emerging state and state like borders in the post Soviet space in the decades following state collapse This book argues border making is not only about states physical marking of territory and claims to sovereignty but also about people s spatial practices over time In order to illustrate how borders come about and are maintained this book looks at border communities at internal open administrative borders and borders in the making as well as physically demarcated international state borders This book also pays attention to both the spatial and temporal aspects of borders and the interplay between boundaries and borders over time and thus identifies some of the processes at play as space is territorialized in Eurasia in the aftermath of state collapse

Migration and Identity in Central Asia Rano Turaeva, 2015-11-19 This book is an ethnographic and sociolinguistic study of Uzbek migrants in the capital city of Uzbekistan The ethnographic details of the book represent post Soviet urban realities on the ground where various forms of belonging clash and kinship ties are reinforced within social safety networks Theoretically it challenges the existing theories of identity and identification which often considered the relations between We and Them taking the We for granted The book offers in depth insights into the communication strategies of migrants the formation of collective consciousness and the relations within the We domain Constructed around contradictions regarding Uzbek identity and how various groups relate to one another as different ethnic groups the theoretical argument of the book is built through such methods and analytical tools as strategic rhetoric and discourse analysis communication and identity theories and the analysis of power and dependence The book will be of interest to students and scholars of Central Asian Studies Migration Studies and Central Asian Culture and Society Sociologus; zeitschrift für völkerpsychologie und soziologie Richard Thurnwald,2004
