This book examines how gendered agency emerges in peacebuilding contexts It develops a feminist critique of the international peacebuilding interventions through a study of transitional justice policies and practices implemented in Bosnia Herzegovina and local activists responses to official discourses surrounding them Extending Nancy Fraser s tripartite model of justice to peacebuilding contexts the book also advances notions of recognition redistribution and representation as crucial components of gender just peace It argues that recognising women as victims and survivors of conflict achieving a gender equitable distribution of material and symbolic resources and enabling women to participate as agents of transitional justice processes are all essential for transforming the structural inequalities that enable gender violence and discrimination to materialise before during and after conflict This study establishes a new avenue of analysis for understanding responses and resistances to international peacebuilding by offering a sustained engagement with feminist social and political theory

Gender Equality and United Nations Peace Operations in Timor Leste Louise Olsson, 2009 This book expands the inquiry of United Nations peace operations to incorporate their effects on the equality of the host state Thereby the study enhances our ability to trace changes in the power balance between men and women and systematically explores the effects on the power relation in Timor Leste 1999 2006 Under Development: Gender C. Verschuur, I. Guérin, H.
