Katz,United Nations. Economic Commission for Latin America and the Caribbean,2001 In the last ten to fifteen years profound structural reforms have moved Latin America and the Caribbean from closed state dominated economies to ones that are more market oriented and open Policymakers expected that these changes would speed up growth This book is part of a multi year project to determine whether these expectations have been fulfilled. Focusing on technological change, the impact of the reforms on the process of innovation is examined. It notes that the development process is proving to be highly heterogeneous across industries, regions, and firms and can be described as strongly inequitable. This differentiation that has emerged has implications for job creation, trade balance, and the role of small and medium-sized firms. This ultimately suggests, amongst other things, the need for policies to better spread the use of new technologies.
