Poverty Alleviation Strategies Of Ngos:

Poverty Alleviation Strategies of NGOs D. Rajasekhar, 2003 Examines the efforts made by the NGOs in alleviating poverty with special reference to India New Growth and Poverty Alleviation Strategies for Africa Karl Wohlmuth, 2009 This Volume XIV analyses the New Growth and Poverty Alleviation Strategies for Africa Institutional issues and perspectives in designing new growth and poverty alleviation strategies are considered in various case studies Cote d Ivoire Nigeria Botswana and Tanzania Other studies deal with institutional problems of resource rich countries after conflict Sudan and with the institutions to enhance environmental protection parallel with economic growth and poverty reduction Niger Further studies deal with institutions to bridge the gap between formal and informal entrepreneurial sectors in Kenya and Tanzania Local issues and perspectives for designing new growth and poverty alleviation strategies are considered in case studies on rural urban development gaps in Tanzania and on microfinance as an instrument for new growth and poverty alleviation strategies Tanzania and Eritrea A study on small farmers in Ghana provides information on the role they can play in value chains Two studies on Nigeria highlight the local and the sub regional health and poverty alleviation programmes and the relation to growth Book Reviews and Book Notes on the theme are part of the volume This Volume builds the foundation for a comprehensive strategy of policy reforms in Africa so as to integrate new growth and poverty alleviation strategies Complementary to Volume XIV is Volume XIII on New Growth and Poverty Alleviation Strategies for Africa International and Regional Perspectives Both Volumes are of importance for all those who work in African countries as officials executives managers researchers and policy makers but also for all those who actively support Africa s development concerns at the international regional country local and project levels They will experience this Volume XIV and also the complementary Volume XIII as indispensable sources of insight reference and inspiration Social Dialogue and Poverty Reduction Strategies International Labour Office, 2006 Business Approaches to Poverty Alleviation Kathrin Bischoff, 2014-12-30 Despite decades of development efforts led by governmental and non profit organizations the issue of poverty prevails with approximately 1.4 billion people living in extreme poverty As a result of the failure of governmental and non governmental actors to successfully address poverty single handedly the development community has turned its eyes towards the private sector in particular on Multi National Corporations MNCs as an additional contributing force To enhance understanding within the research field of business and poverty this thesis aims at investigating the potential and actual contributions of the private sector in general and MNCs in particular with regard to poverty alleviation In order to address this research aim in the theoretical part of this thesis the existing literature on the potential contributions of distinct business approaches to poverty alleviation is reviewed Hereby six business approaches being Business as Usual Corporate Philanthropy Microfinance Bottom of the Pyramid Social Entrepreneurship and Cross Sector Partnerships as well as their variations and combination possibilities are investigated This analysis leads to a classification of company s Poverty

Alleviation Portfolio Approaches The examination of the possible contribution of MNCs in theory is in turn complemented by the practical part of this thesis which studies the actual poverty related initiatives undertaken by Fortune s global 100 firms in practice Hereby data is gathered on these 100 MNCs via a content analysis of company websites and Corporate Social Responsibility reports Building upon the classification framework developed in the theoretical part the Poverty Alleviation Portfolio Approaches of these MNCs are ultimately classified as inactive reactive active or proactive

Non-governmental Organizations and Rural Poverty Alleviation Roger Riddell, Mark Robinson, 1995 There has been considerable interest in recent years in the ability of non governmental organisations to work with the rural poor in developing countries in order to improve their quality of life and economic status through the provision of credit skills training and other inputs for income generation programmes This book brings together the results of 16 evaluations in 4 countries Bangladesh India Uganda and Zimbabwe to provide a detailed assessment of the contribution that NGOs make to rural poverty alleviation The results indicate that NGO projects are successful when they build in a high degree of participation when the staff are committed to the goals of the project and when they are managed by strong and competent leaders Many of the projects studied contributed to increases in income and welfare However not all projects were successful contrary to received wisdom about the efficacy of NGO interventions many failed to reach the very poorest most were costly to implement and few of the projects demonstrated an ability to continue once external funding was withdrawn These findings provide strong support for viewing NGOs as a mechanism for helping to reduce rural poverty but also demonstrate that many of the interventions are isolated or one off The impact of NGOs could be heightened by increasing the size of the intervention encouraging greater cooperation among NGOs and by fostering closer cooperation with governments This study will make an impact in the development community and its conclusions will help shape NGO and poverty agendas in the coming years The book will appeal to all those concerned with rural development NGOs and development programmes

This scoping study has two principle objectives It provides a summary of current poverty reduction strategies of US and UK based international non governmental organizations INGOs with a special emphasis on the underlying frameworks that form the basis of their development interventions Secondly the study identifies the applicability of an asset accumulation framework to prevailing programmatic and advocacy strategies for poverty reduction employed by INGOs After an initial desk review of background materials a sample group of 21 INGOs was finalized based on seven selection criteria These relate both to the substantive focus of each organization as well as to institutional factors and were developed in order to achieve the greatest diversity possible in the sample The criteria were mission focus stated or known analytical approaches to poverty termed poverty frameworks in this paper relationship to the field length of time in operation size of revenues primary funding sources and organizational structure A questionnaire was developed for use in the final research phase in which 34 staff from 7 UK based and 14 U S based INGOs were interviewed The study assesses five possible determinants of INGO poverty approaches The first determinant is history both organizational and the broader historical forces at work in the world Interviews suggest that history is perhaps a stronger factor in shaping an organization s poverty strategy than mission which appears to have only a partial connection with strategy Current development theory seems to have a tenuous and weak impact on the strategic framework This intellectual determinant expresses itself more effectively indirectly through funders interests which had a definite impact on poverty reduction strategy Not surprisingly the research found that funding sources were influential particularly the US government and foundations Organizational structure the last determinant investigated seems to have an unclear and complicated relationship to INGO poverty frameworks and strategies
