What place does spiritual need and healing have in the counselling room Denying the spiritual dimension of personal distress can be potentially hurtful to clients but the issue of spirituality is also fraught with professional and ethical issues for therapists This book draws on original research to move the debate about spiritual need forwards in relation to therapeutic practice supervision and training An international team of contributors offer a diverse range of perspectives to critically explore a wide spectrum of spiritual issues including prayer pastoral care and traditional healing Edited by a leading figure in the field this book Illuminates experiences of both clients and practitioners through detailed case vignettes Draws on cutting edge research in this growing field Invites readers to address their own therapeutic practice with hands on discussion points This measured and thoughtful approach provides a fascinating insight to an often complex and controversial topic As such the book is essential reading for trainees and practitioners of counselling and psychotherapy Sharing Spaces? Jessica Rose, 2002 In a discussion on how counsellors integrate prayer and professional practice someone asked why it had taken so long for someone to ask such an obvious question Perhaps it has something to do with the fact that it highlights areas that require deeply personal answers They touch on practice at the level of what we believe about the very nature of human beings and our relationships with each other The counselling profession is committed to being non directive and non judgmental But what happens when prayer is part of the counsellor's life Or part of the client's Or both Sharing Spaces is a practical and insightful contribution to an under explored area looking at ways in which prayer can inform and nourish the counselling process as well as ways in which the two areas can be difficult to integrate Studies in Formative Spirituality, 1986 The British National Bibliography Arthur James Wells, 2002 Casebook in Pastoral Counseling Newman S.
