Haas, 2018-09-05 How do

leaders perceive threat levels in world politics and what effects do those perceptions have on policy choices Mark L Haas focuses on how ideology shapes perception He does not delineate the content of particular ideologies but rather the degree of difference among them Degree of ideological difference is he believes the crucial factor as leaders decide which nations threaten and which bolster their state's security and their own domestic power These threat perceptions will in turn impel leaders to make particular foreign policy choices Haas examines great power relations in five periods the 1790s in Europe the Concert of Europe 1815-1848 the 1930s in Europe Sino-Soviet relations from 1949 to 1960 and the end of the Cold War In each case he finds a clear relationship between the degree of ideological differences that divided state leaders and those leaders' perceptions of threat level and so of appropriate foreign policy choices These relationships held in most cases regardless of the nature of the ideologies in question the offense-defense balance and changes in the international distribution of power

Outcast Europe: The Balkans, 1789-1989 Tom Gallagher, 2013-11-14 Examining two centuries of Balkan politics from the emergence of nationalism to the retreat of Communist power in 1989 this is the first book to systematically argue that many of the region's problems are external in origin A decade of instability in the Balkan states of southeast Europe has given the region one of the worst images in world politics The Balkans has become synonymous with chaos and extremism Balkanization meaning conflict arising from the fragmentation of political power is a condition feared across the globe This new text assesses the key issues of Balkan politics showing how the development of exclusive nationalism has prevented the region's human and material resources from being harnessed in a constructive way. It argues that the proximity of the Balkans to the great powers is the main reason for instability and decline. Britain, Russia, Austria, Hungary, France, and finally the USA had conflicting ambitions and interests in the region. Russia had imperial designs before and after the 1917 Revolution. The Western powers sometimes tolerated these or encouraged undemocratic local forces to exercise control in order to block further Soviet expansion. Leading authority Tom Gallagher examines the origins of these Western prejudices towards the Balkans, tracing the damaging effects of policies based on Western lethargy and cynicism, and reassesses the negative image of the region, its citizens, their leadership skills, and their potential to overcome crucial problems.
