Directly standardised rate of cataract procedures in people aged 65 years and over per 100,000 population by Local Authority; 2021/22

Revised: 08 December 2022

What is the context?

A cataract is the loss of transparency of the lens of the eye due to tissue breakdown and protein clumping. They are often considered part of the ageing process. However, they can also be congenital or secondary to other causes e.g. chronic uveitis, prior intra-ocular surgery such as glaucoma filtration surgery or vitrectomy, and trauma. Risk factors for cataract include: gender, diabetes, sunlight, steroids, diet, smoking, and alcohol.

Cataract surgery is the removal of the natural lens of the eye that has developed an opacification and its replacement with an intraocular lens.

Cataract is a common and important cause of visual impairment in Scotland. Cataract extraction accounts for a significant proportion of the surgical workload of most ophthalmologists. It accounts for over 80% of surgical activity within Hospital Eye Services.

Cataract surgery has the potential to transform a patient's life; to keep people independent and undertake activities of daily living such as self-care and driving. The number of cataract operations is expected to increase by 25% over the next 10 years as a result of an ageing population (Drillon et al 2021, see References).

Referral for cataract surgery is undertaken by community optometrists who are the first port of call for patients presenting with eye conditions. Patients are referred to be considered for cataract surgery by ophthalmologists.

Patients will most likely require cataract surgery on both eyes, several weeks apart, which has been advocated by National Institute of Clinical Excellence as appropriate and a cost-effective means to keep patients as independent as possible. The practice of immediate sequential bilateral cataract surgery forms part of improvement work within cataract pathways affording substantial value-added benefits.

Age-sex standardised rate per 100,000 pop with 95% confidence intervals; 2021/22

What is the variation?

The highest number of cataracts done in the past few years was 40,999 in 2019/20, falling to 32,983 in 2021/22 due to pausing of operations during the pandemic. In 2021/22, the rate of cataract procedures in people aged 65 years and over in Scotland was 3,122.6 per 100,000 population, an increase from the rate of 1,664.4 per 100,000 population in 2020/21. In 2019/20, the rate was 3,196.9 per 100,000 population.

There was a 2.2-fold variation in the directly age-sex standardised rate of cataract procedures performed in people aged 65 years and over across the Local Authorities of Residence in Scotland in 2021/22, ranging from 2439.6 to 5478.7 per 100,000 population.

The COVID19 pandemic had a significant impact on all health care services. As cataract extraction constitutes non-emergency surgery, it was suspended for many months. NHS Orkney was the first board to remobilise in early summer 2020. The ability for other boards to remobilise was seriously impacted by clinical prioritisation, with sight threatening ophthalmic procedures prioritised over vision restoring surgeries such as cataract surgery.

Having to wait longer for a procedure may result in patients seeking private treatment potentially influencing the data.

Procedures And Decisions Of The Scottish:

Civil Procedure in EU Competition Cases Before the English and Dutch Courts George Cumming, Mirjam Freudenthal, 2010-01-01 For decades it seemed clear that EC competition law was enforceable effectively at the national level and ECJ case law has continued to bear this out In recent years however the Commission has been proposing harmonization of national rules of procedure in competition cases implying that procedural autonomy is insufficient on its own to produce an effective enforcement system in this area As the authors of this book clearly demonstrate this suggests a binary system governing the enforcement of EC Articles 81 and 82 namely that led by the Commission through directives and eventual regulations and that built on ECJ principles in areas not dealt with by such Community instruments This book describes and analyzes not only the specific Commission recommendations but also the manner and extent to which these recommendations are or may be implemented in civil procedure In particular the authors consider changes which may be required if these recommendations are incorporated into Dutch and English rules of civil procedure Also addressed are elements of procedure not mentioned by the Commission but which might usefully be considered in the context of ECJ principles of effectiveness equivalence and effective judicial protection of rights At the heart of the study is a detailed analysis of the Commission White Paper on Damages Actions and the Commission Staff Working Paper both issued early in 2009 The in depth analysis ranges over procedural aspects of such elements as the following and standing and disclosure and access to evidence and burden of proof and fault no fault and costs of damages actions and injunctions and civil versus administrative enforcement and limitations and leniency programmes and collective actions and confidentiality and forms of compensation Anticipating as it does a looming impasse in European competition law this remarkable book sheds defining light on the real implications of EC competition law for parties to damages actions not only in the national systems studied but for all Member States For practitioners and jurists it offers a particularly useful approach to the handling of cases involving European competition law and also serves as a guide to current trends and as a clarification of doctrine The Scottish Law Review and Reports of Cases in the Sheriff Courts of Scotland ,1892 The Journal of the Law Society of Scotland ,1995 Scottish Education T.
