What is SAS ?

- SAS — Statistical Analysis System/Software

Why the Need for SAS ?

In the early 1960s, the Statistics Department at North Carolina State University was awarded an agriculture research project.The people working on the project needed computer software for IBM mainframe that could access and manipulate large volumes of data and perform statistical analysis on the data. There was no package available that met their needs, so they started designing a solution.

History of SAS

- The Early 1960s
- Agricultural research at Land Grant Universities
- Business need: general purpose statistical software to manage and manipulate large volume of data and perform statistical analysis.
